Concerning the Coat of Arms of Richard Smith, the patentee of Smithtown, Dr. Smith wrote, dated Nov. 9, 1939, to Mrs. W. H. Smith of Stony Brook, L. I.:

"While not being able, at this time, to trace back definitely, it would seem almost certain that the line leads back to a Thomas Smith of Staffordshire, whose son, Richard Smith was an Alderman of London, and Sheriff in 1508-9, . . . through his grandson William Smith of Humberstone, Lincolnshire—

Richard Smith, the Alderman of London 1508-9, was the ancestor of the Smiths of Theedlethorpe, Lincolnshire, also."

FOREWORD

For more than twenty years, the late Dr. Frederick K. Smith of Warren, Ohio, devoted himself to gathering and preserving all available records concerning Richard Smythe, founder of Smithtown, Long Island, three centuries ago, and concerning his family, members of which have spread out throughout this country and to the far corners of the world.

Dr. Smith, a ninth generation descendant of Richard Smythe, pursued with painstaking care, infinite patience, and a scrupulous regard for accuracy, the task to which he had dedicated himself.

While welcoming all information which came to him in his search, he diligently sought out, through many avenues of research, corroborative evidence as to the accuracy of such information by checking innumerable sources and, wherever possible, original records. Even when he was able to find original records he met with the difficulties all genealogists face, of discrepancies between names and dates and spellings as found in family Bibles and on tombstones and those in parish records or town records of vital statistics. His voluminous and carefully compiled notebooks reveal the many sources to which he turned and the scrupulous care he exercised in his search for accuracy.

Just before World War II, Dr. Smith had the history of the first five generations and part of the sixth generation of The Family of Richard Smith printed. With the advent of the war, problems arose which brought the project to a temporary halt. Meanwhile, extensive additional information came to light, which Dr. Smith determined to incorporate in his Smith genealogy. With his usual patience and painstaking care he made the extensive alterations and additions made necessary by the new material he had acquired, but in October, 1944, he died without being able to carry into execution the printing and publishing of this major genealogical work.

During the twenty years of his research, Dr. Smith received invaluable assistance from Mrs. William H. Smith of Stony Brook, whose husband, the late William H. Smith, was, like Dr. Smith, a descendant of Richard Smythe. After Dr. Smith's death, all his manuscript notes, correspondence, records, corrections, and other material relative to his genealogical work, were turned over to her. In the intervening years, proposals have been made several times to publish the work. Plans for its publication came to fruition at what seemed to all concerned an appropriate time—the period of the celebration of the three hundredth anniversary of Richard Smythe's receiving from Richard Nichols, first English governor of the Province of New York, the patent to the land which makes up most of present-day Smithtown.

THE FAMILY OF RICHARD SMITH

FIRST GENERATION

1. RICHARD[1] SMITH was one of the early settlers of Southampton, Long Island, and it is there that we find the earliest established record of our ancestor, who later became the patentee of Smithtown, and whose activities made him a prominent figure among his contemporaries and gave him a well recognized position in the history of Long Island.

It now appears most probable that he was the Richard Smith who sailed from England 2 Oct. 1635, aged 22 years, in the ship John of London, bound for St. Christophers. We may suppose that ships sailing for the West Indies followed a course which took them along the New England coast and that they would put in at Boston on the way. Under such conditions Richard Smith could have ended his voyage there or could have gone on to St. Kitts, later to find his way back if he concluded that New England offered more attraction than some point in the West Indies.

If he did continue the voyage to the West Indies at that time, he would seem to have arrived in New England within a year or two later. From his supposed contact with the activities of the Cambridge press at the time of printing its earliest issues, in 1639 and 1640, we suppose him to have been in Boston or in Cambridge at that time, but it is not until his arrival in Southampton that we have a definite record.

Southampton was settled by a group of men who lived at Lynn, in Massachusetts Bay Colony. Contracts made by them regarding the transportation of their families and goods and for the acquisition of land on Long Island were dated at Lynn, 10 Mch 1639/40 and 17 Apr 1640. The settlement was made at Southampton in June of that year. The advance party of settlers had at first selected a site at Cow Neck, on the Sound, toward the west end of the Island, but finding that the Dutch claimed that territory and would be likely to make it unpleasant for any English people there, they chose a new site, further east, where they would not be disturbed.

Richard Smith did not share in the original compact but must have been one of the earliest accessions to the original proprietors. His name is found in the Southampton records, in various connections, until about 1658. The earliest mention appears in the following entry, dated 26 Oct 1643:

> Yt is ordered that Thomas Hyldreth shall satisfy vnto Mr. Smith to the value of three pounds and twelve shillings and foure pence, to be payd vnto him in English Wheate after the rate of foure shillings by the bushell, betwixt this and the first of March, and that this order shall bee a finall ende of all matters of Controversie what so ever betwixt them.

Various other items of interest from the records are here given:

In March, 1647, the General Court appointed five men, including "Mr. Smith," to have "the same authority that the five men had in 1644 to give or let land that is at liberty for a crop this year."

Richard Smith was chosen freeman 7 Oct 1648 and is named as a freeman and head of a family in lists dated 1649.

1 May 1649. Richard Smith and Richard Odell appointed to measure and lay out that part of the "great plaines" which was to be fenced.

It was ordered in May, 1649, that Mr. Richard Smith and Thomas Halsey should make a levy of eighteen pence on every 50 pound lot, "for satisfying towne debts." It would seem that the unit of investment among the proprietors was a fifty pound lot. Out of the fifty odd proprietors about one quarter of them had two "fifties" each, a similar number had three, a few had more than that, and the balance one lot each. Such distribution of holdings formed a basis for later allotments as well as for taxes and for other purposes. Richard Smith appears to have had a 150 pound lot, or three fifties. His home lot was on the west side of the main street, next north of the lane leading to the pond and the beach.

10 Oct 1650. Mr. Richard Smith, Thomas Sayre, and John White were voted by the Ganeral Court "to agitate towne business" and to have the same authority as the five men the year before.

On 7 Oct 1650 Richard Smith was chosen constable by the General Court, to serve for a year's term.

In an unusual and important case, where action was brought by Deborah Raynor against John Kelly, under date of 11 Jan 1650, the arbitrators were Mr. Josiah Stanborough, Richard Mills, schoolmaster and town secretary, and Mr. Richard Smith. A part of the payment ordered in the settlement of this case was to be placed in the hands of Mr. Richard Smith as trustee.

1 Jne 1652. In an action for trespass brought by Jonas Wood against seven men, including Mr. Smith, the jury found for the plaintiff in the amount of two pounds five shillings, with increase of Court charges.

16 Sep 1653. The jury of twelve men in an action for slander includes Richard Smith and Richard Odell.

On 7 Mch 1644 Richard Smith had been named in the "fourth ward," consisting of eleven men, "for the cutting out of whales" cast on the beach. Two men were to be chosen by lot from each ward to do the cutting, and they were to have an extra share each. The whales found on the beach constituted a source of supplies of considerable value to the settlers. In the endeavor to work out a settled plan for taking care of and dividing the whales, four "squadrons" were organized in March, 1653, each consisting of from twelve to fifteen men, the total lot holdings represented in each squadron being 31 fifties. The squadrons were to take turns in cutting out, each acting for an allotted period. Richard Smith, with three fifties, was in the first squadron, which was referred to as "Mr. Smith's squadron."

In 1658 a "stray hogge" supposed to belong to him, which had probably escaped from captivity at or before the migration from Southampton to Setauket, was sold by the town "by outcry," for 17 shillings, and the proceeds used to reimburse certain Indians for damage done by the hog.

Richard Smith appears to have been one of a group of men, numbering a half dozen or more, among whom were Edward Howell, Richard Woodhull (called "Odell" in the Southampton records), Thomas Halsey, and others, who were depended upon to take the lead in various public services. The names of those men appear on the records more frequently than most of the others. In some of the later records there are references to another Richard Smith, who lived at North Sea, in the town of Southampton, but in most of the entries mentioning the name there is little reason for question as to the identity of the person intended.

The following entry, appearing in the records under the date 17 Sep 1656, signalizes an event which seems to have prompted the severance of our ancestor's previous relations with Southampton:

> It is ordered by the general Court that Richard Smith for his vnreverend cariage towards the magistrates contrary to the order was adjudged to bee bannished out of the towne and hee is to have a weekes liberty to prepare himself to depart, and if at any time hee be found after this limited week within the towne or the bounds thereof hee shall forfeit twenty shillings.

It is very probable that he took considerably more time than was allowed by the Court order for settling his affairs at Southampton, and possibly was for that reason assessed a substantial fine, as indicated by the entry immediately following that above given:

> It is ordered by the general Court that Richard Smith for his vnreverend cariage to the magistrate was judged to pay the sum of 5 pounds to bee levied imediately vpon the goods and chattels of the said Richard Smith, this present 6th of October 1656,

He was possibly still at Southampton as late as 6 Jan 1656 [o.s.], when action for trespass was entered by Henry Pierson against Richard Smith, and the jury found for the plaintiff in the amount of two shillings, together with the Court charges.

The Southampton records do not afford an explanation of the matter of banishment. The magistrates concerned were probably Thomas Topping and John Ogden, who were the magistrates and representatives at the general court at Hartford for that year, but what order of the magistrates had been disregarded, or what reason there had been for an appearance before the magistrates in the first place, is not recorded. A search farther afield may, however, throw some light on the question.

In August, 1656, there landed on the shore of Massachusetts Bay the forty-one passengers of the ship Speedwell, with Robert Lock as master, which had sailed from Gravesend, England, on the thirtieth day of May.*

* The original passenger list of the Speedwell, preserved in the J. Pierpont Morgan Library, New York, indicates the date of landing as August 27th, which is also the date given in the New England Hist. & Gen. Register. But other reports, published within a few years following the event, give the date as August 7th, and the New England Commissioners' Proceedings quoted above indicate the earlier date as probably correct. The letter from Boston there referred to, dated Sept. 2nd, says that Richard Smith had then been let out of prison, and the other reports state that he was detained three weeks.

So it would seem that the "2" now found before the "7" may be an accidental mark having closely the form of "2". Or it is just possible that it may have been purposely inserted when the document was still new, by someone who wished to make it appear that the landing was three weeks later, and therefore the imprisonment three weeks shorter than the actuality; or that Richard Smith had not been arrested or imprisoned at all. The revised date might support a disclaimer by some official responsible for the arrest, in case of criticism

Among them were eight designated as Quakers, and of the others, not so designated, one was Richard Smith, aged 43 years. Quakers not being viewed as desirable additions to the community, the eight who had been entered as such on the passenger list were arrested and held in prison for some weeks and then sent away from the Colony.

Richard Smith was accorded a similar reception, as it appeared that he had come to adopt the religious views of the Quakers. The Commissioners of the United Colonies of New England left the following reference to the matter in the record of their proceedings for September, 1656:†

> A letter from the Gou^{r} and Majestrates of the Massachusetts dated att Boston the cecond September 1656 was p^{r}sented and read the contents as followeth; * * * heer hath arived amongst us seuerall psons professing themselves quakers fitt Instruments to propogate the kingdome of Sathan; for the Securing of ourselues and our Naighbours from such pests wee haue Imprisoned them till they bee despatched away to the place from whence they came one of which Richard Smith wee haue lett out of prison to returne to his family att Southampton whence wee hope and doubt not our Naighbors of Connecticut wilbee carfull soe to order it as hee may not doe the least p^{r}jedice. As also that some Generall rules may be comended to the seuerall Jurisdictions for the settling of Gou^{r}ment amongst the Indians * * * and that some generall rules may bee alsoe comended to each Generall court to prevent the coming in amongst vs from foraign places such Notorious heretiques as quakers Ranters, ec.

(The following published account gives additional details:‡

convince him of his error, if such were present, they would accordingly address him. When told that the proposed interview was intended to be private, he wanted it otherwise. After three weeks detention, he was sent home by water.

The same story is found in a more picturesque setting in a volume printed only five years after the occurrence, in 1661, written as an answer to the declaration of 18 Oct 1658, made by the General Court of Massachusetts in relation to the Quakers. The curious title is here given, followed by extracts from pages five and eleven:

In the beginning of the fifth mo. called July, 1656, Mary Fisher & Ann Austin, arrived at Boston, and after them, in the Moneth followed, viz. the 7. day of the 6 Moneht, 1656, Mary Prince, Sarah Gibbens, Mary Weatherhead, Dorothy Waugh, Christopher Holder, Thomas Thirstone, William Brend and John Copeland. * * * Yea, not only unto them, but to Richard Smith (as Inhabitant of Long Island, who came in the Ship with them, and whom Ye called their Proselyte) did not your Unreasonableness extend, because he was their Proselyte as ye said? And did not your Council for the present Distress upon the Arrival of the Two Women aforesaid * * *

The writer of the book was of course under a misapprehension as to the reason for sending him home by water, as that was the only way of reaching Southampton.

The correspondence in time of the above noted events, together with the probability, as will be seen, that our ancestor was later known as "Quaker Smith," makes it appear reasonable to accept the view that the same Richard Smith was concerned in each event. Adopting this explanation of the decree of banishment, we may suppose that he had undertaken a journey to England and before reaching home had been "convinced" and suffered martyrdom accordingly.

Whatever the cause of banishment from Southampton may have been, the event appears to have become a turning point in his career and put him on the course which led to the founding of Smithtown. It may be supposed that expression of disapproved religious convictions, if such was the cause, was not prosecuted with the same severity on Long Island that obtained in Massachusetts, so that the subject of banishment from Southampton did not find it necessary to go to a great distance.

From Southampton Richard Smith migrated to the north side of the Island, probably going directly to Setauket, in Brookhaven, and becoming a resident there within two years of its settlement, which took place in 1655. One of the original proprietors and first settlers at Setauket was Richard Woodhull, who had also been one of the early proprietors at Southampton. In the records of the latter town the name is given as "Odell," the town official being responsible for that spelling, but the owner of the name always wrote it "Wodhull." Richard Woodhull and Richard Smith were closely associated in various ways and were probably intimate friends. They were both among the eleven men constituting the "fourth ward," in 1644, for cutting out whales, and had been associated in various other activities. Both had undoubtedly belonged in the same social rank, as recognized in England, and had a similar standpoint for their outlook on life. The name of one other of the early Brookhaven proprietors is also found on the early Southampton records, that of Samuel Dayton. With these and doubtless other acquaintances and friends already located there, it would appear as a logical sequence that Richard Smith, in leaving Southampton, should turn his steps toward Setauket. The circumstances which caused him to leave Southampton did not prevent subsequent friendly relations with the people of that town and did not appear to lower him in the estimation of his new neighbors.

The earliest appearance of Richard Smith's name so far found in connection with Setauket is in the record of the New Haven Court for 20 May 1660, where suit was brought against him by Mr. John Youngs, probably of Southold. It appears in the Brookhaven records for 1661, when he participated in the division of Oldfield lots, of six acres each. He also had a four-acre lot in the second division, when the lots were four acres and three acres. The following quotations from the records contain references to him:

> witnes theire hands this 23 of may 1664:

There was an agreement with Daniel Lane, dated "this 12 day of 10 m 1664" [December, 1664], signed, with sixteen others, by "Richard Smythe," in accordance with which a mill and dam were to be built, for Lane to do the grinding for the community. The town was to maintain the dam for a year and a day, after which the property was to become Lane's. This agreement was, however, annulled about a month later and the mill problem otherwise settled.

It cannot be now known at what period Richard Smith first conceived the idea of acquiring the Nissequogue lands. In all probability it was in pursuance of the desire, which may have possessed him even when first leaving England, to become a large land-owner. He was a witness to the signing of the deed of gift by which Wyandance, in 1659, made over to Lion Gardiner his title to the land now comprising the town of Smithtown. His attention may have been called to the land at that time, or, what seems equally probable, he may have had something to do with bringing about the transaction, by way of suggestion, thinking that Lion Gardiner's acquaintance and influence with the Indians claiming the title, then living at East Hampton, would be greater than his own. Tradition has it that the restoration of Wyandance's daughter to her father, after her capture by Indians from across the Sound, took place at Smith's residence at Setauket, after Gardiner had used his influence and means to secure her return.

However that may be, it was not until 1663 that Lion Gardiner conveyed to Richard Smith his title to the lands covered by the deed of gift. Whatever written agreement there may have been between them has never been found. Lion Gardiner died in that year. The earliest record connecting Richard Smith with the purchase is that found in the Southampton Records, of an agreement dated 22 Nov 1663, by which he deeds half the land west of the Nissequogue to Captain John Scott, of Setauket, who claimed to have previously purchased the land from Gardiner. Scott was afterward shown to be an impostor, and nothing more is heard of this sale, which evidently became void. The falsity of Scott's claims being discovered in connection with some of his deals, he was arrested at Setauket and tried before the Hartford Court, which ordered, 12 May 1664, a sequestration of his estate. At Setauket, 9 Jne 1664, Mr. Smith was appointed, with the constable and Will Crumwell, to sell some of Scott's goods for the relief of his victims.

The deed of gift from Wyandance to Lion Gardiner, dated at East Hampton 14 Jly 1659, described the land as between Huntington and Setauket and extending southerly half way through the Island. It was signed by Wyandance, Wyandbone, and the Sachem's wife, and witnessed by Richard Smythe, Thomas Chatfield, and Thomas Talmsdge. The original deed is in possession of the Long Island Historical Society. It has an endorsement by David Gardiner, of Gardiner's Island, dated 15 Oct 1664, to the effect that he had received satisfaction of Richard Smith, of Nissaquake, for what concerned him in the deed. It was recorded in the office of the Secretary of State, in the Long Island Book of Records for 1659 to 1667.

After acquiring the rights of Lion Gardiner to the Nissequogue lands there were still various claims, of greater or less validity, which had to be taken care of before a satisfactory and legal title could be secured.

At the time of the first arrival of the white settlers on Long Island there were thirteen principal tribes or clans of Indians on the Island, who seem to have been, for the most part, friendly with one another and with more or less blood relationship between members of different tribes. Each tribe lived upon and enjoyed possession of the land within certain fairly definite limits. The Montauk tribe had jurisdiction over the east end of the Island, and their sachem, Wyandance, was also acknowledged as Grand Sachem over all the tribes of the Island. As such he signed deeds for land in various places, and his counter-signature was often placed on deeds given by other sachems.

The Matinecock tribe occupied the lands on the north shore from Newtown to Huntington and possibly claimed jurisdiction as far as the Nissequogue. The Nissequogue tribe held the land between the Nissequogue River and Stony Brook.

From the point of view of the English settlers the legal title to the land was vested in the English Sovereignty, but the grants or patents given to individuals or to communities were conditioned on giving satisfaction to the Indian occupants, and the designation of location and bounds usually conformed to the descriptions given in the Indian deeds. The patent was in effect, as well as being so stated in the instrument itself, a confirmation of the proprietorship as previously acquired in some acceptable manner.

In order to acquire a title which should be proof against all adverse interests, Richard Smith started on the trail of the various claimants, a pursuit which occupied his attention for twelve years before being crowned with final success. There seems to have been little difficulty in taking care of the title to the land on the east side of the Nissequogue. He probably entered into actual possession and made settlement at Nissequogue, with his family, early in 1664, but for some years remained in close association with his Setauket neighbors, both socially and in matters of civil jurisdiction.

As early as 29 Sep 1650 Nassetconset, Sachem of Nissequake, had given a deed to Edmond Wood and others, of Huntington, for the land from the Nissequogue River eastward to a river called Memanusack (probably Stony Brook) and also land on the south side of the Island. This deed of 1650 was recorded for Richard Smith 2 Mch 1666, indicating that he had secured a transfer of the title from the original grantees. The deed as quoted was copied from a copy of the original deed certified by Secretary Nicolls in 1663, bearing an endorsement to the effect that "Quaker Smith's deed from Coll. Nicolls bears date, March the 7th, 1665." The endorsement on this copy of the deed must have been made within a few years, at most, after that date and is evidence that he was generally known by that nickname.

In June, 1664, after taking care of all Indian claims appearing up to that time, Richard Smith, desirous of securing an authoritative confirmation of his title, presented the matter to the General Court at Hartford, and an agreement was made whereby he undertook to settle twenty families on the land.

Up to this time the settlers of the eastern part of Long Island had been under the jurisdiction of, and had given allegiance to, New Haven and Hartford. In 1664 Charles II granted to his brother James, Duke of York, the large territory which embraced all of New Netherland and a part of New England, including Long Island. The first English governor of New York, Sir Richard Nicolls, made his entrance into the city 8 Sep 1664, and thereafter it was to the Courts of New York that the inhabitants and settlements of Long Island had to appeal in case of necessity.

Hartford being no longer the seat of authority, Richard Smith took measures to secure from the new governor a confirmation of his title to the lands which he claimed. He met with such a degree of success that on 3 Mch 1665 Governor Nicolls issued a patent which covered all the land east of the Nissequogue and "on the west side of the said River so farr as is at this present in ye possession of Richard Smith as his proper right and not any wayes claymed or in controversy betweene any other persons."

The failure in getting the desired confirmation of title to the western tract at this time was due to adverse claims of his neighbors of the town of Huntington, who based claims to ownership on a deed given by Matinecock Indians. The Matinecock deed was older than that given by Wyandance to Lion Gardner, but it was claimed that Wyandance had been the true owner, and not the Matinecocks.

The matter was brought before the county court and then to the New York Court of Assizes, but a settlement had not been reached when the Dutch, in 1673, again acquired control of New York. With characteristic persistence Richard Smith carried the case to the Dutch Court, where the proceedings resulted favorably. It had not gone far enough, however, to complete the record and settle the case definitely, when control again passed to the English in 1675.

The English Court of Assizes accepted the finding of the Dutch Court and confirmed to Richard Smith the title to the land extending to the present western boundary of Smithtown. The decision was a compromise, as neither party was given all that had been originally claimed.

In 1677 a patent was issued by Governor Andross, generally known as the "Second Patent," for the land east of the Nissequogue, and also for the western tract, which had, "at the General Court of Assizes held in the year 1675, been recovered by the said Richard Smith from the town of Huntington. * * * The tenure of the said land and premises to bee according to the custom of the manor of East Greenwich, in the County of Kent in England in free and common soccage and by fealty only. * * * The said Richard Smith * * * yielding and paying therefor yearly and every year unto his Royal Highness's use as an acknowledgement or quit rent one good fatt lamb, unto such officer or officers as shall be impowered to receive the same."

The story of the difficulties which confronted our ancestor during the twelve years or more of negotiations and court procedures, through which he realized his ambition to become the owner of an estate which proved to be one of the largest single estates acquired by the early settlers of this country, has its counterpart in few of the pioneer settlements.

In all parts of the Island the Indian claims received early consideration, and in most cases the desired land was readily secured, and the title afterward remained undisturbed. Yet in a few instances, as in that of the Nissequogue land, conflicting deeds were given, based on overlapping Indian claims and conjectured ownership, which had to be later reconciled by court intervention. The Indians must have had little conception of the significance attaching to the idea of land ownership among the new comers. With thoughts centered mainly on supplying of their needs for existence and the indulgence of their appetites, while knowing that they were giving away the use of their lands, they joyfully received the commodities given them for making their marks on a sheet of paper. In eastern Long Island the Indians early came to regard the whites as their friends and as protectors against incursions by their enemies from across the Sound, the Narragansett tribes, who were more numerous and more powerful than themselves. While there were depredations at times, and for a few years the English were apprehensive of trouble and took precautions to protect themselves, there was at no time any serious outbreak. The relations between the whites and the Indians on eastern Long Island were probably more amicable than in the case of almost any other of the earlier settlements.

If the governmental changes of 1664 had not taken place, affecting the control of Long Island, or if they had been postponed a few years, it seems reasonable to suppose that Richard Smith would have acquired his estate with less difficulty, but there would not have been demonstrated to his descendants the quality of metal of which he was made.

Although we have no statements of contemporaries as to the personal appearance or characteristics of Richard Smith, we can, nevertheless, from the legacies of material things and of recorded history which have come down to us, draw certain conclusions which appear dependable regarding his personality and the conditions influencing his development.

The fact that he was usually designated as "Mr." in the earliest records show that he was, in the English social terminology, a "gentleman," and he so designates himself in some of the deeds now existing. That is, he was of an armigerous family. This is confirmed by the fact that with his signature on legal documents he used a seal bearing a fleur-de-lis which, in all probability, was a charge on his coat of arms.

He had, undoubtedly, the liberal schooling of English boys of the more privileged families, and in addition to his ordinary schooling must have been subjected to the influence of an atmosphere of legal or official procedures and records, under which his penmanship took on certain characteristics derived from the "court hand" or "law hand," which would not likely be acquired in any other way. The court hand was the style of writing found in official records and documents of that period and earlier, showing a surviving influence of the older Gothic script. Such characteristics, shown in Richard Smith's writing, have been found in scarcely a single instance out of hundreds of examples of the writing and signatures of the leaders among his contemporaries coming from England to America. The schooling and training which he must have had indicate that in all probability he was brought up in London.

In studying the specimens of his writing, the freedom of stroke and uniformity in the character and shape of the letters give evidence of much practice, and one would hardly realize that the writer must have been some seventy-odd years of age when executing them, and that for fifty years there could have been but little occasion for keeping in practice in the polite art of writing. The deeds which he made to his children, his grand-children, and others, his will, and other papers, which were doubtless largely his own composition, show a considerable familiarity with the involved expressions of legal phraseology of the time.

Richard Smith became one of the flood of Englishmen who, in the middle period of the reign of Charles I, sought escape from the conditions of religious persecution and political tyranny to which they had been subject and opportunity to shape their own development in the promising possibilities of the new world. The people were under the heavy taxation and severe oppression engineered by Archbishop Laud and were far from being in accord with the King. The feeling of discontent was widespread and deeply seated, though the outward appearance of tranquility put at rest any sense of danger in Court circles. Thousands were leaving England for America.

The spirit of Puritanism of that period was largely the development of a demand for the opportunity for self expression, of which we see the growth from the early period of the Reformation. With that spirit the great mass of the English people were more or less imbued, and with it Richard Smith must have been in sympathy. Yet the motive of freedom in religion might not appear to have had the same dominance with him as with many others, and there is no reason to believe that he came because of strong personal convictions on religious matters which caused him to take part in the movement or that he accompanied older members of his family so influenced. Neither is there reason to suppose that he had been involved in political machinations, the untoward outcome of which might have led him to seek asylum away from home. He was in young manhood, of an age at which few men would have the maturity of opinion or the experience of life to lead them to independent action in sacrificing home ties for the sake of religious belief. He might easily have been one of a congregation coming in the train of ministerial leadership, as was the case with many of our Puritan ancestors, but we have no record of his arrival in any one of such companies. In each one of the communities where he made his home after the beginning of his known history, the attitude of the community would appear not to have been so orthodox as in the Massachusetts Bay settlements.

In Southampton, while the Rev. Abraham Pierson accompanied the original settlers as their pastor, he resigned his charge four years later, not being in accord with the more liberal ideas which prevailed, when the union with Connecticut was followed by the extension of the voting privilege to those who were not church members. In Setauket in the early days services were conducted by Samuel Eburne, and on 12 May 1662 Mr. William Fletcher was voted forty pounds a year for his services, but there was no regularly installed minister until the arrival of the Rev. Nathaniel Brewster in 1665. There was no resident minister at Smithtown until the Rev. Daniel Taylor became pastor, probably in 1712, the people there depending on Setauket, up to that time, for their ministerial services. In contrast with these communities we know that various other bands of settlers who branched out from the earliest foundations on Massachusetts Bay to find still newer homes in the wilderness went each as a congregation, with the minister often as a temporal as well as a spiritual leader.

So it would appear likely that Richard Smith, held by no ties of landed estate or of established business, was attracted by the expectation of new experience and interesting adventure in this land of unlimited possibility and alluring promise. This must have been the impelling force with many, even of those who came in the congregations of liberty-seeking Puritans, and especially with those Englishmen who had, for a number of years been leaving England for the more southerly lands of South America, the islands of the Caribbean Sea, and the shores of Virginia. And we have no evidence that Richard Smith set out for New England, when leaving home, rather than for some other point in the western world, excepting that New England was where he eventually landed.

So far as Quakerism is concerned, whether or not he was in any way affiliated with that sect in later years, it could not then have had any bearing on the matter, as he left England some ten years before George Fox began preaching his revolutionary and unwelcome doctrines—unwelcome to those who had sought religious liberty for themselves in the new world, as well as to the standpatters of old.

The various records show that Richard Smith was frequently a principal in some controversy, in business or other matters. On such occasions he would apparently not allow himself to be drawn into physical encounters, but would place his reliance on legal action, as becomes a subject of legal training. It is to be noted that the records indicate a favorable outcome on his side in a fair portion of those cases, with a few notable exceptions. One of those exceptions was when he was banished from Southampton.

We conceive him, as a young man, to have been impressionable and open minded to new ideas, endowed with a constructive imagination and a strong feeling of self confidence and self reliance, and with something of a spirit of unrest and a disposition to seek adventure. An impetuous temperament, manifested in occasional outbreaks even after reaching a well rounded maturity, would seem to have been usually kept in good restraint by a fairly well wrought out conception of the objects of his ambition in life and the responsibilities entailed in their attainment. His feeling of sympathy with his fellow-man and a certain sense of responsibility in his relations with his neighbors appear to show in him a spirit of altruism, which was perhaps even more rare then than in our own day.

A few weeks before his return to Southampton, after his visit to England, he had landed from a ten weeks voyage on which he, with thirty-odd other passengers, had been in close association with four men and four young women, all of whom were doubtless full of enthusiasm for the promulgation of the new doctrines of Quakerism, and in fact were on their way to America for that purpose, probably after selection by reason of outstanding qualifications for their role. At a time when intellectual activity was largely absorbed in discussion of theological theories, and extreme intensity of feeling was exhibited by the advocates of the various doctrines, the new teachings of Fox and his followers fell like a great light on the minds of those whose souls were open to them, but were anathema to those who accepted restraint under the bonds of established ecclesiastical authority, and even more strongly so to the Puritanic dissenters, of the old world and of the new, whose minds had been trained to argue for the whole range of Calvinistic belief.

Taking the view already expressed of Richard Smith's personality we can understand his acceptance of the new teachings. We can suppose that he accepted them only after prolonged thought and discussion on the voyage, and are prepared to find in him the ardor of a new convert, leading him into an active effort to disseminate his newly acquired conceptions and to confer upon others the satisfaction and pleasure that he himself had found in them.

This seems to have been his first impulse when the opportunity appeared to offer, first at Boston, and in all probability again at Southampton, even in defiance of established authority. But defiance of accepted theological doctrine was the one thing which the established authority would not brook. With his impulsive temperament, stubborn when occasion demanded, he would be aroused by opposition to still more vigorous advocacy of his own position. But the Puritanic spirit of authority, when adequately aroused, was also obstinate, and the force of numbers overcame the power of individual opinion.

After the early enthusiasm for the new ideas had abated, it is likely that, taken up with the cares and demands that attended a pioneer's life, especially with the numerous interests which later engaged his attention, Richard Smith did not devote much time to theological matters, and it is not likely that he adopted the whole body of Quaker doctrine as a serious religious conviction. He must have come into contact with the Quakers of western Long Island as personal and business relations with early Newtown and Flushing residents took him there on more or less frequent visits, and a considerable number of his Lawrence descendants were Quakers; but there is no evidence of his affiliation with the Friends Meeting. In all probability the nickname "Quaker Smith" must have had its origin in the incidents connected with the arrest of the Speedwell's passengers at Boston. If he was entitled to be numbered with the Quakers during the latter part of that year, 1656, and the early months of 1657, he would have held, without himself knowing it, the unique position of being the sole representative of that following in America. In the summer of 1657, however, a number of Quakers came, and a still greater number in 1658, settling especially in Flushing, Long Island, and in Rhode Island.

In the early days of Smithtown the people there looked to the church at Setauket for their pastoral care. After the first patent was granted by Governor Nicolls an agreement was entered into, before the Governor, between the "Officers of the Towne of Seatalcott, and Richard Smith of Nesaquake, * * * that hee pay towards ye maintenance of the Minister at Seatalcott, during the Terme in ye said Patent mentioned, or until he shall bee otherwise provided." He seems possibly to have been somewhat dilatory in payment of this obligation, as the following letter is on record:

New York 3rd April, 1666.

I am moreover to put you in minde of your former engagement before his Honor, to contribute to ye allowance of the Minister of Seatalcott, untill you shall be otherwise provided, which will be expected from you; These particulars were given mee in charge to deliver to you from the Governor.

I am,

Your Loving ffriend

M. Nicolls.

To Mr. Richard Smith of Nesaquake on Long Island.

The Rev. Nathaniel Brewster was the first regularly established minister in Setauket, going there in 1665 and serving faithfully for many years. The arrangement referred to in the letter quoted must have continued until the early years of the eighteenth century, when the Rev. Daniel Taylor, a graduate of Yale in 1707, became the first resident minister in Smithtown.

Richard Smith had probably been brought up amid surroundings such that he had absorbed the idea of the association of large land holdings with the ideals of social life and believing, as already suggested, that America might offer opportunities possibly denied him on his native soil, may have been guided by an ambition for the attainment of such ideals in the active career which brought realization of his early dream.

He appears to have had, even at an early period, the means of acquiring a liberal holding of proprietary rights and of indulging, to a measure above the average, in the possession of the various accompaniments of good living, according to the tastes and standards and opportunities of the time. Various articles of personal and household use have survived the ravages of time and have come into possession of present day descendants. One is a silver snuff-box, elaborately engraved, of which supposably he made abundant use. Also a set of silver buttons, engraved with his initials. Of the descendants who have owned the buttons, some one, in more or less modern times, has had them made into a set of cuff links, but they must surely have originally appeared on the owner's coat, and been changed from the old to new when soil and wear called, for the tailor's visit to the home.

A fireplace chair, of oak, made with arms but without back, appears as sturdy and as capable of fulfilling its purpose as when occupied by the figure of the first Richard himself. The wills of his children and grandchildren mention silver headed canes, silver forks, silver spoons, tankards, punch-bowls, and the like, some of which had probably belonged to their ancestor, indicating that they had been brought up amid surroundings of a considerable degree of luxury.

It does not seem probable that Richard Smith was married before leaving England. It is more likely that he found his wife in New England. Sarah, and the tradition has been accepted by many that she was Sarah Folger, but this has not been confirmed by any record now known and appears negatived by accepted facts. John Folger, first of the name in New England, is supposed to have had only one daughter, Mary, who married Peter Paine, of Southold. The Folgers were among the early settlers of Martha's Vineyard.

Notwithstanding the agreement to settle families in Smithtown as prerequisite to a patent, but few transfers of land could have been made for the first twenty years after settlement. As the sons grew up and became of age they were given land for farms, and houses were built, in locations not far from the home of their parents. Each son appears to have been given a hundred acres of land soon after reaching his majority. The following entries of deeds for such gifts to three sons are found in the Brookhaven Records:*

* The spelling and use of capitals in these records must be attributed to the clerk who did the writing, and not to Richard Smith, who had a good command of English and made a very satisfactory use of capitals and conformed his spelling to the usage of his time.

Richard Smith with a seale

In the year 1683, in response to the call of the provincial government, ratings were sent in from the Long Island towns, as given in the Documentary History of New York. In the "Smith's Towne Estimations Sept y^{e} 28 1683" the only returns were those of Richard Smith and his six sons. The total valuation amounted to £1340.

In 1688, doubtless feeling somewhat the weight of years, and seeing then a number of grandchildren whose futures were to be considered, Richard Smith gave to his children and grandchildren a considerable number of deeds for land in Smithtown, dated in the last few days of August, and acknowledged before Wait Winthrop, one of the "Councill of his Majestys territory and Dominion of New England," who was probably then on a visit at the home of Richard Smith. The deeds bear the signature of Richard Smith, with his bold execution in the style of the "court hand." His wife signed with a mark. The signatures are accompanied with a wax seal bearing the impression of a fleur-de-lis surrounded by a circle of dots. From the handwriting, it would seem probable that the deeds were written by Richard Smith, Jr., probably following the dictation of his father. Aside from the signatures on such existing deeds, the document shown in facsimile in the frontispiece is one of the few pieces of Richard Smith's handwriting which have come down to modern times. The exact literal reading of this deed is as follows:

> Know all men by these prsts that I Richard Smyth > senior of Smythtown doe promis to deliver into the > possession of Danni[ll] Whitehead a lott of land adion> ing to the lott of my sonn Iobe, and as large as his > ceaved Satisfaction to my content Richard Smythe

> March 3 1684/5 [seal]
> witnes

> Samuell Ruscoe

The words "witnes my hand" and following to the signature were evidently interlined after the signature and date had been written.

It is not known when the designation "Bull Rider" of "Bull Smith" was first used. We may reasonably suppose that the subject of that nickname was so called during his lifetime, though we have no contemporary record for proof. That the generic title, the "Bull Smith Family," should be applied to his descendants is a natural sequence, in a district where the Smiths have been so numerous and so prolific that the simple patronymic leaves much chance for mistaken identity. So we find on Long Island the several distinct families of Rock Smiths, Nan Smiths, Blue Smiths, Tangier Smiths, and others, as well as popular designations for individual Smiths, such as "Horseblock Isaac," "Petticoat Isaac," "Catchpenny Dick," "Eleven-Dollar Bill," and the like.

The legendary tale comes down to us from a hoary antiquity that Richard Smith, by bargain with the Indians, incorporated in his purchase from them all the territory he could encompass in one day by riding on the back of a bull. To confirm our possibly wavering faith in this story we have the assurance of a descendant, the family historian, Samuel A. Smith, that "The tradition of the bull riding of Richard Smith, known as "bull rider," in his treaty with the Indians, will be shown to be a fact as positive as the existence of Smith and the Indians."

Just what proof Samuel A. Smith would have offered we do not know, but, in view of the known details of the deeds given by the early Indian claimants, with definition of bounds specified in the deeds, we are not given much encouragement to accept the popular explanation of the title. That a foundation in fact existed must be allowed, and it is altogether probable that Richard Smith, at an early date, used a bull for the purpose of transportation, where most of his descendants found the horse more acceptable, and the present generation is satisfied with nothing less speedy than a motor car.

The will of Richard Smith, in which his wife joined, was recorded in "The Lester Will Book," of which Pelletreau's "Early Long Island Wills" is an unabridged copy, and was also reprinted in "Records of Smithtown." The will and the Court entry of probate are as follows:

Sarah Smith was by no means a silent partner of her husband. Her capability and success in fulfilling her duties as a mother and a housewife require no proof beyond a look at her family of nine children brought up to maturity. Her function as a balance wheel for the impetuosity of an aggressive and what might then seem a visionary husband can only be inferred. Of her active participation in the business matters of the partnership, when the controversy regarding the title to the Smithtown lands was at its height, we have the following evidence* concerning her appearance before Governor Francis Lovelace and his Council:

Sarah Smith survived her husband by about sixteen years, and numerous deeds and other papers of that period bear her name.

She made a will, dated 20 Jan 1707/8, a copy of which is here given:

With passing generations knowledge of the burial place of Richard Smith and his wife has been lost to their descendants. It was supposed, however, to have been in the ground where the son Obadiah had been buried. Apparently no stone had marked the graves of the parents until, in 1919, some of their descendants placed there a granite table-stone, which was unveiled and dedicated with appropriate ceremonies on September 13th of that year.

Children of Richard and Sarah Smith (7 sons, 2 daughters):

+ 3. Elizabeth, born about 1643, died in 1712, married (1) Captain William Lawrence; married (2) Governor Philip Carteret; married (3) Colonel Richard Townley.

Letters of Administration were granted to his father 24 Apr 1682, and the inventory of his estate, listing cattle, swine, and horses, 100 acres of land west of the Nissequogue, and personal property, amount to £143 10s. He is supposed to have been the first white person buried in Smithtown. A tombstone resting horizontally on low foundation walls of brick, seen in the ancient burying ground on Nissequogue Hill some fifty years ago, had the inscription, only partially decipherable, — "Obadiah, son of Richard and Sarah Smith, born . . . . . March . . . . ." In the passing years the inscription has become entirely undecipherable. While it is supposd that Obadiah Smith was 29 years old at the time of his death, as reported by Mrs. Hawks, from her reading of the inscription on the stone, the statement has been made that he was the youngest son. Judge Lawrence Smith's contribution to Munsell's History of Suffolk County puts his age at 20 years. This, however, may have been a misprint for 29 years, or may have been a misreading of the age possibly given on the tombstone, but even then partially obliterated. The Brookhaven Records, as quoted on page 21 of this work, show that Obadiah Smith was deeded one hundred acres of land in 1676, indicating that he was of age at that time. Also, the inventory of his estate, dated 1682, when compared with the returns made from Smithtown in 1683, shows a value approximating that made by Adam Smith, and is materially exceeded only by the valuation for the oldest two brothers. As Adam Smith was born about 1649, and Samuel Smith in 1654, it would seem probable that the year of birth here accepted for Obadiah is correct.

\+ 8. Samuel, born 1654, d. 2 Apr 1717, married Hannah Perring.

\+ 9. Daniel, born about 1656, married (1) Ruth Tooker; married (2) Mary Holton.

\+ 10. Deborah, born about 1658, d. 28 Mch 1743, married William Lawrence, Jr.

SECOND GENERATION

2. JONATHAN[2] SMITH (Richard[1]), born about 1641, died about 1718, married Sarah, daughter of the Rev. Nathaniel Brewster and oldest child by his second wife, Sarah, daughter of Roger Ludlow. Nathaniel Brewster was a son of Francis and Lucy Brewster, of New Haven. He was in the first class to be graduated from Harvard College, in 1642. He was the first installed minister of the church at Setauket, going there in 1665, after a period of years spent in England and Ireland.

Very little record is found regarding the eldest son of Richard Smith beyond the fact that he inherited his father's homestead, which his own residence adjoined, at Nissequogue. At the Court of Sessions held at Southold 1 Jne 1670, complaint was made and action brought by Jonas Wood, of Huntington, against Jonathan Smith, "of Neersaquake," for keeping a horse belonging to the former, and Richard Smith, Jr., made answer for his brother. The defendant was ordered to pay to the plaintiff thirty shillings, and also twenty-five shillings to Wood's attorney, Thomas Skidmore. We have no explanation of the circumstances which led to the dispute, but in all probability it was in some way connected with the controversy with Huntington, then at its height.

Jonathan Smith of Smithtown was named as executor in the will of Henry Perring of Brookhaven, dated 1 Dec 1674. His name is also found in connection with that of Jacob Longbotham as witness to a deed dated 17 Jne 1678. Evidently a considerable degree of intimacy with Brookhaven people was maintained after the family removed to Smithtown, and marriages cemented such relations. Jonathan Smith must have made his residence in Setauket for a time, after his marriage, and probably before that event. The records show that at a town meeting held 18 May 1689 it was unanimously agreed to build a parsonage "the same dimensions of Jonathan Smith's." While there were other Smith families represented in Brookhaven at that time, the name Jonathan is not found excepting as it is supposed to refer to Jonathan, son of Richard Smith of Smithtown.

Jonathan Smith's house at Nissequogue was on the north side of the road, at the east of his father's. The house which stood on that site was torn down in 1845, when a larger house was built on the hill, further back from the road. The supposed site of his father's house was for many years marked by a clump of lilacs, the only evidence of former habitation being a flat stone which was thought to have been the doorstep of the house. But even these are not now to be found. Across the road, called the Horse Race Road, on the east bank of the Nissequogue River, was the house of Daniel Smith, in recent years belonging to the Zabriskie family. Children (Smith—2 sons, 1 daughter):

+ 11. Deborah,[3] married Joseph Blydenburgh.
+ 12. Jonathan, b. 9 Nov 1676, died 1744, married Elizabeth Platt.
13. Richard, mentioned in a deed given by his grandfather, Richard Smith, dated 29 Aug 1688, for a tract of land which was to be conveyed to him at the age of twenty-one years. As nothing more is found regarding him, it is supposed that he died when young.

3. ELIZABETH[2] SMITH (Richard[1]), b. probably in 1643, died in July 1712, m. (lic. 4 Mch 1664) Captain William Lawrence, of Flushing, L.I., as second wife. They had seven children. He died in 1680, and she m. (2-lic. 26 Mch 1681) Governor Philip Carteret of Elizabethtown, New Jersey, b. 1639, son of Helier Carteret, Attorney General of the Isle of Jersey, and his wife Rachel. Philip was a distant cousin of Sir George Carteret, one of the two proprietors to whom the grant of territory had been made by the Duke of York. The name New Jersey was given to the province in honor of the island home of the Carterets, and the settlement was called Elizabethtown for Sir George's wife, Lady Elizabeth Carteret. Captain Philip Carteret was appointed Governor of the Province and came from England in 1665. He served in that office until the change in proprietorship of the Province led to his retirement, only four weeks previous to his death, which occurred in December, 1682.

There was no child by this marriage. The Lawrence children had gone with their mother to the new home in Elizabethtown and grew up there. Elizabeth (Smith-Lawrence) Carteret m. (3) 1685, Colonel Richard Townley, eighth son of Nicholas and Joanne (White) Townley, of Littleton, County Middlesex, England. Joanna White was the eldest daughter and co-heir of William White, of Northiam, County Sussex. Colonel Townley came over in the suite of Lord Howard of Effingham, Governor of Virginia, in 1684, and soon afterward settled in Elizabethtown. He had been previously married and had at least one daughter. Sarah, wife of John Shackmaple, of New London, Conn., who was collector, surveyor, and searcher for that Colony.*

Colonel Townley was an adherent of the Church of England and gave the land and a considerable contribution, in 1706, for a building for St. John's Church. It was largely through his efforts that the church was organized, his own house being the home of the first missionaries and the place where services were held at an early date. The Rev. George Keith, after a missionary tour in company with the Rev. John Talbot, published in 1706 "A Journal of Travels from New Hampshire to Caratuck on the Continent of North America," which has the following entry among those for 1703:

> December 19, Sunday.—I preached at the House of Col. Tomfley in Elizabeth-Town, both Forenoon and Afternoon, on 1 Pet. 2:9. Many of that Town having been formerly a sort of Independents, are become well affected to the Church of England, and desire to have a Minister of the Church of England sent to them. There I baptized a Child of Mr. Shakmaple.

Colonel Townley was a Justice of the Peace and was Presiding Judge of the Quarter Sessions at the time of his death, in April, 1711. Colonel Richard and Elizabeth Townley had two sons.

Captain William Lawrence, the first husband of Elizabeth Smith, was one of the patentees of Flushing, in 1645. He was the owner of Tew's

* In The Christophers Family, by Captain John Reynolds Totten. Rec. 51-:215-6 and 52:249), statement is made that John Shackmaple married Sarah Townley, daughter of Richard Townley by his wife, Elizabeth (Smith-Lawrence-Carteret) Townley. Such relationship was assessed by Hill in the pocket chart accompanying "The Mystery Solved." But Sarah, wife of John Shackmaple, who was born about 1675 and died in 1755 in New London "an aged gentlewoman of about 80 years," could not have been a daughter of Elizabeth (Smith) Townley, but was a daughter of Richard Townley by his previous marriage, in England.

Neck and lived there. He was bap. at Great St. Alban's, Hertfordshire, England, 27 Jly 1622, son of Thomas and Joan (Antrobus) Lawrence. His father died 20 Mch 1624/5, and his mother m. (2) John Tuttell, who came to this country with his wife and most of the children, including William Lawrence, then in his thirteenth year, in the spring of 1635, in the Planter. The family appears to have remained in Massachusetts for some years, but in 1644 John Lawrence was one of the patentees of Hempstead, and in the following year both he and his brother William were among the patentees of Flushing, and the latter made his permanent home in that town.

William Lawrence married twice and had by his first wife three children, Elizabeth, William, and John. Some old documents discovered some years ago in Flushing indicated as reported by Mrs. Charles Hilton Brown, that the name of his first wife was Elizabeth Hagar.* The son William married his stepmother's younger sister, Deborah Smith. Captain William Lawrence served in the magistracy of Flushing, under the Dutch government, and held both civil and military offices on Long Island under the English government. In some of the litigation arising out of the controversy with Huntington it was claimed by some of his opponents that Richard Smith derived undue advantage from the fact that his son-in-law, "Schaut" (Sheriff) William Lawrence, had influenced the jury.

The following records are of marriage license, appointment as executrix and as guardian, and a pre-marriage agreement referring to Elizabeth (Smith) Lawrence:

> Whereas I have received information and satisfaction that there is an intent of Marriage between William Lawrence of fflushing and Elizabeth the daughter of Richard Smith of Mishaquak'd, upon Long Island upon their request I give them license, so to do and do hereby require you to proclaim the said William Lawrence and Elizabeth Smith man and wife and so record them and to proceed therein according to your formed customs on the like occasions. Given under my hand at Hempstead this 4th day of March 1664.

Children of William and Elizabeth (Smith) Lawrence (5 sons, 2 daughters):

i. Mary, born 1665, married (1) James Emott, of Elizabethtown, who died Apr 1713 leaving four sons and an estate of £2000. She m. (2) 1714, Rev. Edward Vaughan, who left no issue. Rev. Mr. Vaughan had been appointed by "The Society for the Propogation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts" as missionary for the Elizabethtown region, and had come over in 1709, arriving probably in October. He married Mary (Lawrence) Emott, then of New York, after the close of her first year of widowhood, and they soon afterward made their residence at Amboy, but within a few years returned to Elizabethtown, which remained their home. Mr. Vaughan was of a family of high standing in the west of England, was of high character and happily constituted for the time and sphere of his labors, and his memory was very precious to the people of his charge. He died about 12 Oct 1747, "far advanced in years." His will, dated 30 Jly 1747, mentions his brother-in-law, Charles Townley, his sister-in-law, Mrs. Shackmaple, and his nieces, Sarah Townley (afterward wife of John Harriman 3d), and Mary Townley (afterward wife of Stephen Burrows).

James Emott, the first husband of Mary Lawrence, came to Elizabethtown from England as early as 1682. He was a lawyer and witnessed Governor Carteret's will, 10 Dec 1682. He was appointed County Clerk 28 Mch 1683 and Chief Ranger of the Town 3 Dec 1683, and was married probably in that year. He and his wife soon removed to Perth Amboy, the new capital of the Province, where he kept the ordinary in 1685. The next year he was appointed Provincial Secretary. He removed from Amboy to New York, where his residence was on the east side of Broadway, just above Wall St. He was one of the first vestrymen of Trinity Church and contributed liberally for the establishment and support of the Church. He died in New York, in April, 1713.

Children of James and Mary (Lawrence) Emott (4 sons):

(1) George.
(2) William.
(3) James.
(4) John, m. Mary, daughter of Elie Boudinot, a Huguenot, who came to this country in 1686, shortly after the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes. Children (Emott): (i) John, d. 22 Oct 1735, aged 7 years. (ii) Edwards, d. 30 Nov 1735, aged 4 years. (iii) Jane, b. 1733, d. 20 Sep. 1801, m. 1752, Rev. Thomas Bradbury Chandler, b. 26 Apr 1726, d. 17 Jne 1790, son of William and Jemima (Bradbury) Chandler, of Woodstock, Conn. He was rector of St. John's Church, Elizabethtown, was given the degree of D.D. in 1766 by the University of Oxford, and offered the Episcopate of Nova Scotia in 1786, but was compelled to decline that honor by reason of impaired health. (iv) John, b. 14 Oct 1735, d. 9 Nov 1735. (v) Mary, d. 25 Feb 1786, in her 46th year, m. 3 Jne 1759, at Elizabethtown, by the Rev. Thomas B. Chandler, to John Chetwood, of Elizabethtown, born 1736, died about 17 Feb 1806.

ii. Joseph, born about 1667, married Mary ———. Family tradition and printed genealogical works say that he married Mary Townley in 1690, but no record confirming the tradition has been found. If his wife's name was Townley she was probably a daughter of Joseph's stepfather, Colonel Richard Townley, by a first marriage. The will of Joseph Lawrence, dated 8 Dec 1754, proved 18 Apr 1759, mentions his wife, not named, his sons, Richard and John, who had already been given their portions of the property, and his daughters, Elizabeth Bowne, Sarah Lawrence, Hannah Mollynex, and Abigail Forbes. His daughter, Sarah Lawrence, and Stephen Lawrence were appointed executors. David Rod, Jr., John Embree, and Jacob Lawrence were witnesses. Joseph Lawrence inherited the estate at Tew's Neck.

After his death, however, the most of the children, including Katharine, reassumed the name Farmar. (4) Sarah, not married, named in her father's will, 1767, as one of the executors, died probably in 1784. Letters of administration on her estate were granted, 16 Jne 1786, to her nephew, Joseph Lawrence.

(i) Amy Whipple: m. (2) Mrs. Susannah Eaton, daughter of Dr. John Turner, of Freetown, Mass. It was mainly through his efforts that the Providence Mutual Fire Insurance Company was organized, and he remained secretary of the Board of Directors for some years. No definite evidence has been found as to the maternity of the other children. Of three daughters, Elizabeth, wife of John Pugsley, Anna wife of Matthew Vail, and Phebe, wife of John Raynor, and two sons, Thomas and James, it would seem probable that these sons and perhaps one of the daughters were children of the second wife, Hannah Lawrence. Their father's will, 2 Mch 1767, proved 5 Oct 1784 contains the statement that some of the children were under age.

(7) Abigail, died 1789, married Major Alexander Forbes, born 1720, died 1796, of the British Army, son of Timothy and Sarah (Sparrow) Forbes. Their son, Captain Alexander, also in the British Army, born 1743, died 1799, married 1776, Susanna Gifford, born 1756, died 1816, daughter of Archer and Catherine (Waldron) Gifford, of Newark, N.J. 4. RICHARD[2] SMITH (Richard[1]), born probably in 1645, died 1720. He was granted a license for marriage 20 Jne 1670, by the Court of Assize.

The editor of the printed index volume of early New York marriage licenses states in a foot-note that the original record did not state the name of the woman for whom the license was given, but that he supplies it from Thompson's History of Long Island as Hannah Tooker. This, however, is an error, as Hannah Tooker could hardly have been married in 1670, her oldest child having been born in 1696 and the youngest in 1712. The license indicates a first marriage by which there was probably no issue. Richard Smith married (2) Hannah, daughter of John Tooker, of Southold. Her sister, Ruth Tooker, had married Daniel Smith (9), Richard's youngest brother. John Tooker came from England. His first wife was Mary Johnson, and his second wife was Hannah, daughter of Barnabas Wines and widow of John Elton, of Southold. In the will of John Tooker, of Southold, dated 24 April 1688, his wife, Hannah is mentioned and his daughter, Hannah Tooker. She and her sister Ruth were daughters by the first marriage.

Richard Smith evidently maintained a close association with the Brookhaven people, and his name is found in a number of places in the Brookhaven records, as a witness to deeds and in reference to his official position as Justice of the Peace. He was a witness to a deed given 24 May 1675 by Robert Ackerly for a part of his home lot sold to Jacob Longbotham. Documents recorded in the office of the Secretary of State included a commission as lieutenant, dated 13 Mch 1685, in a company in which Richard Woodhull, Jr., was captain, and a commission as Justice of the Peace, dated 14 Dec 1689. He was known as Justice Richard Smith and was for some years Supervisor for Smithtown.

Richard Smith purchased, 15 Oct 1694, the three necks, Moriches, Mattuck, and Watchogue, on the south shore of Long Island, which territory was erected into the "Patentship of Moriches," a patent being granted by Governor Fletcher 12 Nov. 1797. Interest in a part of this land was afterward sold to Matthew Howell, of Southampton.

The will of Richard Smith of Smithtown, dated 23 Jne 1718, proved 28 Mch 1720, mentions his wife Hannah, sons Richard, Nathaniel, and Ebenezer, the last under age, and daughters Sarah and Hannah. To the wife were left one-third of movables, except plate, the best room in the house, and two slaves, Harvey and Dick; to son Richard the neck on the south side of the Island, "where he now lives," and half the right in the island at the bottom of Ezekiel Howell's Neck (Moriches Island), "all the improved land that my father died possessed of in Smithtown, excepting that farm that formerly belonged to Robert Arthur," and a mulatto boy, Stephen; also his biggest silver tankard and a silver-headed cane; to son Nathaniel the neck called Watchogue, "lying at south," half the neck called Mattuck, and half the right on Moriches Island; a certain tract on the Nissequogue River, with house, mill, and all improved land not previously bequeathed, one half of such improved land to be given to son Ebenezer when of age; also two negroes, his little silver tankard, and silver-hilted sword; to son Ebenezer various lands, a negro named Jack, a silver server and one silver salt; to daughter Sarah 130 acres of land, "my biggest silver mugg, and six spoons, and six head of cattle, and three silver forks;" to daughter Hannah 130 acres of land out of undivided rights in Smithtown, "my best silver mugg, six spoons, three forks and six head of cattle," and sons Richard and Nathaniel were to purchase for her household goods as much and as good as had been purchased for her sister. The executors appointed were "my sons Richard and Nathaniel and my well beloved friend John Davis of Easthampton." Richard Smith's homestead was on the north side of the road at Nissequogue. It was for many years the home of the Misses Harries, until destroyed by fire, 22 Feb 1918. In the fire Miss Eliza Harries lost her life, and many valuable relics and papers were destroyed.

5. JOB[2] SMITH (Richard[1]), born probably in 1647, died about 1719, married Elizabeth, daughter of John and Hannah (Brewster) Thompson, of Setauket, L.I. John Thompson was one of the fifty-five early proprietors of Brookhaven, going to Setauket in 1656. He was born 3 Jne 1609, died

14 Oct 1688, married Hannah Brewster, a sister of the Rev. Nathaniel Brewster and daughter of Francis Brewster of New Haven. We have very little in the way of direct record or information regarding Job Smith, whose descendants possibly out-number those of any other of Richard Smith's children. It would seem possible that he was naturally inclined to look on the problems of life from the esthetic and sentimental side rather than from the strictly practical and business point of view. Among the signatures of Richard Smith's sons which have come down to us, his is the only one which uses the "y" instead of an "i" in spelling the name, in which respect he followed the uniform practice of his father. In the Smithtown estimates for assessment of taxes in 1683, the total valuation for Job Smith was £92, while in the case of his brothers it ran from £130 to £306. Among the deeds given him by his father is the following:

> This Indenture made the thirtyeth day of August in the fourth yeare [1688] of the Reigne of our Sovreign Lord, James the Second, by the Grace of God King of England, Scotland, ffrance and Ireland, Defender of the ffaith &c. Smithtown, Sept. 17th, 1688.

Richard Smith and Sarah Smith acknowledged the above written instrument to be their voluntary act and Deed before me underwritten one of the Council of his Majestys territory and Dominion of New England. Wait Winthrop.

[Endorsed] Richard Smith, Deed to Job Smith for the North fields.

The character of the writing in the signature of Sarah Smith indicates that her name, and probably the body of the deed, were in the handwriting of Richard Smith, Jr.

Another deed of the same date conveys "All the messuage tenement or dwelling house home lot and all other lands and meadows, and buildings now in the tenure and occupation of the said Job Smith, within the bounds of Smithtown," together with a number of other tracts in various location totaling one hundred acres or more. Still another deed of that date gives to the two grandsons, Job and Richard, sons of Job Smith, "A certain tract of land lying and being upon ye lower end of Stony Brook neck, where the said Job shall choose the same, out of ye undisposed land, being 180 acres. And ½ of all ye meadow at the pond near the said Job his home lot. For the benefit of said Job and Richard to be divided as followeth, viz. 80 acres of the land and the said ½ of meadow at ye pond, to Job, the eldest son of the said Job Smith, and the other 80 acres to Richard. And the said Job Smith is to give deeds to them." A deed given by Sarah Smith, widow of Richard Smith, 3 Jly 1697, conveys and confirms to Job Smith "The 40 acres of land which his father Richard Smith formerly granted to him, and bounded out for him, lying in ye North field, next to the land of Jonathan Smith, on the east side thereof * * * a point of land in Rasapeage neck on ye east side of ye land of Adam Smith next adjoining thereto and running down to the bay * * * 15 acres on ye hill westward from y house of said Job Smith * * * 100 acres of land near the Three Sisters where he shall see cause to take it."

Job Smith's homestead was at the east of that of his brother Richard, on the north side of the road at Nissequogue. The old house which stood there for many years, and which may have been the residence of Job Smith, has recently been carefully taken down by Mr. Robert Malone and reerected on a site further back from the road, on the higher ground. The original structure has been preserved as far as practicable.

Children of Job and Elizabeth (Thompson) Smith (6 sons, 1 daughter):

+ 19. Job, b. 9 Mch 1679, died 1740, married Dorothy Woodhull.
+ 20. Richard, born 1684, d. 16 Jne 1759, married Elizabeth Brush.
+ 21. Joseph, born probably 1685, married Mary Aldrich.
+ 22. Timothy, born 1686, married Patience Thompson.
+ 23. Aaron, born after Aug 1688, died 1746 or 1747, married Zurviah Sands.
+ 24. James, born after Aug 1688, married Jerusha Topping.
25. Elizabeth, married, as second wife, the Rev. Daniel Taylor, who died 8 Jan 1747/8 in his 57th year, at Orange, N.J., son of Justice Daniel Taylor, of Saybrook, Conn. He was a graduate of Yale in 1707, and was the first minister established in Smithtown, going there in 1713. His first wife, Jemima, died 20 Aug 1716, aged 24 years, four months, and was buried at Nissequogue. After leaving Smithtown, he settled in Orange, New Jersey, in 1721, and his tombstone can there be seen. His wife, Elizabeth (Smith) Taylor, died after removal to Orange, before 1726, as he married a third time in that year or earlier.

6. ADAM[2] SMITH (Richard[1]), born about 1649, died 2 Jly 1726, aged 77 years, married Elizabeth Browne, probably daughter of Edmund Browne, of Dorchester, Mass., whose daughter, Elizabeth, was born 31 Dec 1658. She survived her husband for some years and was living as late as 27 May 1735, when she signed a quasi will, making gifts to her grandchildren, Adam and Anna Smith. She is mentioned in the will of her son, Edmund Smith, dated 2 Jly 1734. Adam Smith was known as "Justice Adam Smith." His homestead was on the south side of Stony Brook Harbor and in recent years has been the home of Mrs. Devereux Emmet, a descendant of Richard Smith. The location was known as Sherewog. Probably the first land held by Adam Smith was that transferred to him by the deed of gift given on page 24. His father also deeded to him, on 29 Aug 1688, "All his messuages tenement or dwelling house, tract and tracts of land meadow and creek thatch, now in the tenure and occupation of the said Adam Smith. Also 10 acres of creek thatch where the said Adam shall choose the same, within the Three Sisters Harbour, within the bounds of Smithtown." On the same date another deed conveyed 100 acres of upland either about Three Sisters or on Stony Brook neck, as should be chosen, for the benefit of Edmund Smith, son of Adam Smith, and a deed for the same was to be given him when older.

A will of Adam Smith, not probated, dated 12 Jne 1704, left all of his estate to his only son, Edmund Smith. A very old stone seen many years ago in the burial ground at Sherewog, with the only legible inscription "Adam Smith * * * aged 77 years," has been replaced by a granite marker inscribed in olden style "Here Lyes ye body intered of Adam Smith decd July ye 2 Anno Domini 1726 in ye 77 [cut to replace 67] year of his age."

Only child of Adam and Elizabeth (Browne) Smith (a son):

+ 26. Edmund,[3] born before 29 Aug 1688, died probably in Dec 1734, married (1) Susannah Floyd; married (2) Mary Smith.

8. SAMUEL[2] SMITH (Richard[1]), born 1654, d. 2 Apr 1717, married Hannah, daughter of Henry Perring, one of the first settlers of Setauket, and his wife Hannah, whose first husband was Jacob Longbotham, also one of the first proprietors.*

* Thompson, in his History, and others following him have given the name of Samuel Smith's wife as Hannah Longbotham, that name having been handed down probably by verbal report and inexact family records. Jacob Longbotham, the first of the name on Long Island, probably between 1664 and 1670, leaving his wife Hannah, sons Jacob and Joseph, and daughters Joanna and Judith. His widow married Henry Perring, owner of the mill at Setauker, who deeded the mill to Jacob and Joseph Longbotham on 17 Dec 1671, with the provision that he and his wife should have the use of it as long as they lived, and the provision also that the three sisters of the "sons-in-law" (stepsons) should go toll free, while

Samuel Smith's homestead was at Nissequogue, on the west side of the "Horse Race" road, north of the residence of the heirs of Caleb T. Smith. His first land was probably that conveyed to him by the deed already given as entered on the Brookhaven records, by which he and his brother Adam each received 100 acres in Stony Brook neck. On 29 Aug 1688 a deed from his father conveyed to him the dwelling and all buildings and lands then in his possession, with additional lands, described as follows:

> All his messuage, tenement or dwelling house and one acre of land next adjoining for a home lot, and 3 acres of land more or less adjoining to the north side of Daniel Smith's home lot, and Nissequogue river westerly, and 20 acres of upland adjoining to ye east side of the land in the occupation of Job Smith, bounded northerly by the Cliff and sound: and two points of meadow land on ye east side of Nissequogue river, below the second brook above the mill. Also one equal third part of the tract of land, meadow and creek thatch on ye east side of ye river a little to ye southward of a small inclosure late in ye occupation of Jonathan Smith, and 2 acres of upland next Rasapeage bay northward of the next brook to ye southward of Adam Smith's farm, and all the lands meadows and creek thatch be it whatsoever now in ye tenure and occupation of him the said Samuel.

Under the same date a deed conveyed to Samuel Smith "All his hundred acres of upland, lying and being at the northeast branch of the Nessaquage river, adjoining to the Southward of lands in the possession of Jonathan Smith," together with adjoining meadow, to be conveyed to Samuel's son, Obadiah upon reaching the age of 21 years.

Perring's daughter, Hannah, should have freedom from toll for her heirs also. The three sisters as mentioned in the deed of gift must have included Hannah Perring. The will of Henry Perring (Coll. N.Y. Hist. Soc. vol. xxv, p. 32), dated 1 Dec 1674, mentions his sons-in-law, Jacob and Joseph Longbotham, his wife Hannah, his daughters-in-law, Joanna Smith and Judith Longbotham, and his daughter, Hannah Perring. Henry Perring died in that month or the next, as on 4 Feb 1674 [O.S.] the overseers of the town made an agreement with the Widow Perring and Jacob Longbotham in regard to keeping up the milldam. As Jacob is named in the agreement, while his brother Joseph, holding an equal interest in the mill, was not named, we are led to conclude that the former was of age and the latter under age, and that neither of them could have had a daughter to marry Samuel Smith as early as 1686. Hannah Perring was probably not a daughter of Henry Perring by a previous marriage but a daughter of the Longbotham boys' mother. If so, she was much younger than her half brothers and sisters and was most probably called by their family name and has gone into the Smith family history as Hannah Longbotham.

Children of Samuel and Hannah (Perring) Smith (2 sons, 3 daughters):

+ 27. Obadiah,[3] b. 16 Aug 1687, d. 25 Nov 1765, married Susannah Stephens.
+ 28. Phebe, married Nathaniel Brewster.
+ 29. Hannah, married John Stratton.
+ 30. Richard, died 1736, married Elizabeth Tallman.
+ 31. Mary, married (1) James Smith; married (2) Thomas Liscomb; married (3) Jacob Munsell.

9. DANIEL[2] SMITH (Richard[1]), born probably in 1656, died in 1721, married (1) Ruth, daughter of John Tooker, of Southold. Her sister Hannah married Daniel Smith's brother, Richard Smith. Daniel Smith married (2) Mary Holton. A deed dated 30 Aug 1688, signed by Richard Smith and Sarah Smith, gave to Daniel Smith

> All his messuage, tenement or dwelling house and home lot, a small enclosure of land meadow and creek thatch now in ye tenure and occupation of Said Daniel Smith. Also 100 acres of upland lying at ye northeast branch of Nissequage river, bounded to ye southward of ye land in ye tenure and occupation of Samuel Smith, and by the west side of ye swamp westerly, and one half part of a hollow commonly called ye great Hollow.

The homestead of Daniel descended to the late Caleb T. Smith. Under the same date another tract was deeded to Daniel Smith in trust for his son Obadiah, to be given him at the age of 21 years:

> bounded westerly by the west side of the first long cove from the Sunk meadow gutt, northerly by the Cliff and Sound. Easterly by the said Daniel Smith's west line, and by Edward Ketcham's north line exteded southerly.

The will of Daniel Smith, dated 19 Nov 1719, proved in New York 16 May 1721, mentions wife Mary, daughters Irene, Sarah, and Mary, all three under the age of twenty-one, and son Solomon; leaves to son Daniel lands on the east side of the river at Smithtown, a silver tankard and a silver-headed cane; to daughter Deborah a large silver cup. The cane mentioned has been handed down to descendants and was seen when in possession of Coe D. Smith, of Smithtown Branch. It is a fine malacca stick, of unusual length for a cane, and the large silver head, engraved with scrolls and flourishes, has the initials "D.S." and the date "1694."

Children of Daniel and Ruth (Tooker) Smith (2 sons, 2 daughters):

+ 33. Obadiah,[3] died, unmarried, on board a privateer. He was known as "The Bold Privateerman." His death probably occurred before that of his father, as he is not mentioned in the latter's will.
+ 34. Daniel, born 1690, d. 13 Jan 1763, married Hannah Brewster.
+ 35. Deborah, born about 1691, married Thomas Rudyard.
36. Lorinda (possibly a daughter by the second marriage), married Thomas Scidmore (or possibly Thomas Stedman).

Children of Daniel and Mary (Holton) Smith (1 son, 3 daughters):

+ 37. Solomon,[3] born 1704, d. 20 Jne 1782, married Hannah Conkling.
38. Irene.
+ 39. Sarah, married Jacob Rogers.
+ 40. Mary, possibly married (1) Obadiah Smith; married (2) Zebulon Bunce.

probably a mistake. The will of Elizabeth (Smith) Townley, dated 8 Mch 1711/12, bears the name, as witness, of Deborah Lawrence, who was almost surely the above Deborah, of Flushing, supposably then on a visit to her aunt in Elizabethtown. As this was some months after the marriage of John Smith, the witness, if the bride in question, would surely have used her married name in witnessing the will.

Without positive evidence as to identity, it appears much more likely that the Deborah Lawrence who married, 27 Nov. 1711, John Smith, of Bergen County, as entered in the records of the Hackensack Reformed Dutch Church, was the daughter of John Lawrence, son by a first marriage, of Thomas Lawrence, Jr., who was born on Long Island but settled in Bergen County, and married, as second wife, Mrs. Francina (Barry) Smith, mother by her first husband of the above John Smith.

(9) Stephen, bap. 12 Jan 1737/8, probably married, 27 Sep 1778, Margaret Jackson, of Flushing.

THIRD GENERATION

11. DEBORAH[3] SMITH (Jonathan,[2] Richard[1]), m. (lic. 8 Jly 1692) Joseph Blydenburgh, a son of Augustin and Sylvestia Blydenburgh, of New York. The license which is assumed to have been for their marriage was recorded as issued to Joseph Blydenburgh and Mary Smith, but as there was no other Joseph Blydenburgh at that time than the one who married Deborah Smith, it would seem that it must have been for them. Joseph Blydenburgh was admitted a freeman in New York in 1691 and in the same year was elected Constable of the Dock Ward. In 1693 he bought property in the city, probably where Trinity Building now stands, and in 1695 fitted out an expedition to be made on the ship Adventure, Captain William Kidd commander. In 1697 he contributed to the glazing of Trinity Church. Deborah (Smith) Blydenburgh died before 19 May 1699, as on that date a marriage license was issued to Joseph Blydenburgh and Catherine DeHart. Joseph Blydenburgh removed to eastern Long Island and on 1 May 1700 bought a house and thirty acres of land from Obadiah Seward of Brookhaven. In the deed he is designated as a merchant of that town. Later he settled in Smithtown and established what became the ancestral home of the Blydenburghs. He had four children by his second marriage.

Although Thompson, Samuel Arden Smith, and W. S. Pelletreau (the last two possibly taking their authority from Thompson) say that Joseph and Deborah Blydenburgh had two children, it would seem probable that there was another daughter, as the records of the Reformed Dutch Church of New York show the marriage of "Nicolaas Burger" of New York and "Deborah Blyenburg," from Long Island, but then living in New York.

12. JONATHAN[3] SMITH (Jonathan,[2] Richard[1]), b. 9 Nov 1676, died 1744, married (lic. 14 Mch 1703/4) Elizabeth Platt, b. 1 Mch 1682, daughter of Epenetus and Phebe (Wood) Platt of Huntington, L.I. Epenetus Platt was a son of Richard Platt, who came from England in 1683 and later settled in Milford, Conn. The son, Epenetus Platt, removed to Huntington in 1666 and married in 1667.

Jonathan Smith inherited the homestead of his father and of his grandfather at Nissequogue, and it remained in possession of his descendants of the Floyd name until recent years. His will, in his own handwriting, dated 10 Oct 1743, proved 29 Nov 1744, mentions his recently deceased son, Platt Smith, and leaves all property to his two daughters, Tabitha, wife of Nicoll Floyd, and Ruth, wife of Henry Smith. Much of his real estate had been previously deeded to his son, Platt Smith.

14. RICHARD[3] SMITH (Richard,[2] Richard[1]), b. 16 Apr 1696, died 1766, married (1) Sarah Sears,* who died 4 Jne 1729, aged 31 years, daughter of Richard and Bashua (Harlow) Sears. He married (2) 7 Sep 1730, Martha Howell. The old birth record reads—"Richard Smith son of Richard Smith was borne ye 16 Day of April about ten o'clock att night in the yeare of our Lord 1696." By his father's will he was left Moriches Neck, on the south shore, where he was living at the date of the will (1718), with a part of Moriches Island, and also lands in Smithtown. He sold the Moriches land to his brother Nathaniel and probably took his father's homestead and Smithtown lands in exchange, as he afterward made his home in Smithtown. The homestead was that belonging, in recent years, to the Misses Harries. The following is an extract from the Smithtown records in relation to the apportionment of undivided lands in 1736:

> Whereas the severall freeholders propryators and deviders of the land of Smithtown have by certain articles of agreement made by and between them bearing date the thirteenth day of March 1735, therein nominated and appointed us Richard Woodhull John

* Thompson and the compiler of the Sears Genealogy, the latter taking his authority from Thompson, give the name of Richard Smith's first wife as Anna Sears. In the Handley Collection in the Smithtown Public Library is a sheet of paper containing the records from Richard Smith's family Bible, written by William S. Pelletreau. This gives the entry in the Bible, said to be then in possession of Miss Elizabeth Smith Clift, of New York,—"Sarah Smith, wife of Richard Smith, deceased this life the 4th day of June 1729, aged 31 years."

> Hallock and George Townsend, to devide layout and equalize all the said freeholders propriaters and deviders in all the undivided lands and thatch beds in Smithtown according to their just rights, Reference thereunto being had may more fully and at large appear. In pursuance of said articles we have layd out to Leftenant Richard Smith the several tracts and parcels of land hereafter mentioned.

He was later known as Captain Richard. His will, dated 20 Sep 1764, proved 1 Oct 1766, mentions his son Isaac, daughters Phebe and Gloriana, not married, and daughters Anna, Sarah, Charity, and Martha. A codocil was dated 11 Jly 1765. The homestead was left to his son, Isaac.

Children of Richard and Sarah (Sears) Smith (2 daughters):

44. Anna,[4] b. 20 Oct 1726, died in 1828 or 1829, at the age of 102 years, married Abner Smith (96), b. 4 Dec 1734, d. 25 Oct 1782, son of Aaron and Zurviah (Sands) Smith.

15. NATHANIEL[3] SMITH (Richard,[2] Richard[1]), b. 30 Jan 1697/8, d. 30 Mch 1765, married Phebe Howell. She died in Southampton, 26 Aug 1775, in her 74th year, while visiting the family of her son, Dr. William Smith, who had died the same month. She was buried beside her son in the Southampton Cemetery. As given in the family record, "Nathaniel Smith was borne the 30 Day January about 2 o'clock In the afternoone in the yeare of our Lord 1697-8." By the terms of his father's will Nathaniel Smith inherited Watchogue Neck and half of Mattuck Neck, on the south shore of Long Island, with half his right on Moriches Island, and also his father's homestead in Smithtown. Afterward he acquired Moriches Neck and the balance of the right on Moriches Island from his brother Richard, to whom those lands had been left, probably giving the Smithtown homestead and other Smithtown lands in exchange. It would seem that after this exchange Richard, who had been living in Moriches, moved back to Smithtown, while Nathaniel took up his residence in Moriches. He thus became owner of the Patentship of Moriches, probably at about the time of his marriage, and made his home there for the balance of his life. A considerable portion of the land has never gone out of the family possession and is still occupied by his descendants.

Nathaniel Smith, Richard Floyd, and William Nicoll were appointed appraisers of a property of seven necks, from Pine Neck to Blue Point, inclusive, and were managers of a lottery by which the tract was disposed of, in June, 1758. This tract, which included the present site of Patchogue, had been purchased by Governor Winthrop in 1664 and sold by his son to Humphrey Avery, who disposed of it by lottery as stated.

The will of Nathaniel Smith, dated 20 May 1761, proved 10 Apr 1765, leaves to his wife, Phebe, household goods, the negro girl Jude, brown horse and riding chair, "my great room in my house and 2 south bedrooms," sufficient firewood, and £30 a year; to son Josiah all lands in Moriches and "beach from Bayles Stage west"; to second son, William, lands in Southampton and £1000 to be paid by Josiah, "but if he refuse to pay it then Wm. is to have the farm Watchogue where Josiah now lives"; to the three daughters, Mary Gardiner, Phebe, and Prudence, £1000 each, the unmarried daughters to have a home and maintenance; makes three sons, Josiah, William and Abraham Gardiner, Esq., executors. The old family birth record reads—"Hannah Smith the dafter of Richard Smith was borne ye 27 Day of February In the yeare of our Lord 1702/3." She died on the passage home after a visit to England and was buried in the burial ground at the home place, as were others of the family, but many years ago their remains were removed to Riverhead Cemetery, where the stones can be seen. The face of the tall stone erected about 1850 to the memory of Captain Fanning is covered by an inscription giving a family record with names of ancestors and descendants. It shows an error in respect to the date of death and the age of Captain Fanning. The Fanning home was in that part of the town of Southold which was set off to form the new town of Riverhead. Jones in the battle with the Serapis, September 25 1779, and was cited for special distinction by Captain Jones. His journal of the incidents of the battle is an important source of information regarding the event. It has recently been published in connection with the log of the Bon Homme Richard by the Marine Historical Association of Mystic, Conn. During the action Fanning was stationed in the main top with a number of men, and one of his hand grenades, falling through a hatchway and exploding on the lower deck of the Serapis, proved to be the final and decisive action in the enemy's defeat. He was in service as lieutenant and captain on a number of privateers during the later years of the Revolution, and afterward a captain of schooners in the West Indian trade. He had been a prisoner of war in England a year before his experience on the Bon Homme Richard and had similar experiences twice later. Appointed a lieutenant in the U. S. In a deed given by his grandfather, Richard Smith, dated 30 Aug 1688, his name is second among the names of Job Smith's sons. His homestead was at Stony Brook Harbor, next east of that of Adam Smith, and he is usually designated on the records as "Richard Smith of Stony Brook." His family Bible, seen when in possession of Elbert Francis Smith at Port Jefferson Station, was a very large and elaborately bound volume. It was printed in 1715 and contained, according to the statement on the title page, "Summaries & Expositions of Theod. Beza upon the hard placed." The family records were written on the front and reverse of the title page for the Apocrypha, the earliest probably by the hand of Richard Smith himself. There is also a written stipulation that the Bible was to be handed down from eldest son to eldest son. That provision evidently failed of fulfillment for the generation immediately following the first, but has been carried out since that time. Children (Smith—1 son, 2 daughters):

His wife was Sarah, daughter of John and Catherine (Hutchinson) Walker, of Rhode Island. The son, James Sands, with two brothers, removed to Long Island and purchased land on Cow Neck, in the locality since known as "Sands Point." Mary Cornell was a daughter of John Cornell and his wife, Mary, daughter of John Russell. John Cornell was a son of Thomas Cornell, born in County Essex, England, and his wife, Rebecca Briggs.

Aaron Smith's home was on the west side of the Nissequogue, just south of the land granted by the town to their first minister, Mr. Taylor. He participated in the apportionment of undivided lands in 1736. The will of Aaron Smith, recorded in the New York Surrogate's office, dated 3 Aug 1745, proved 19 Feb 1746/7, mentions his wife, Soviah, and daughters, Sarah and Soviah. The following is an abstract, referring to bequests to the sons:

> I leave to my oldest son Othniel Smith 100 acres of land adjoining his dwelling house and to come down to the channel of the river bounded north by the land of Job Smith, south by a line running due east from a small walnut tree standing on the brow of the hill near my dwelling house, into the river, and a path leading from the said walnut tree by the barn to the lane, so as to make the said tract to contain 100 acres; Also 4 acres of Thatch bed on the east side of the river, with a small thatch yard thereunto belonging, with the privilege of cutting 2 loads of hay yearly in my share of fresh meadow, adjoining to Daniel Smith's. I also give him the privilege of what cyder and apples he needeth to have out of my orchard for six years. 24. JAMES[3] SMITH (Job,[2] Richard[1]), born after 30 Aug 1688, married Jerusha, daughter of Elnathan and Mary Topping. Elnathan Topping, who died Sep 1751, was a son of Captain Elnathan and Mary (Cooper) Topping and a grandson of Thomas Topping, an early settler and magistrate of Southampton. In the apportionment of undivided land in Smithtown in 1736, certain lands were laid out to James Smith on the right of his father, Job Smith, but he did not sign the agreements for division of lands, made in 1735, 1753 and 1755. This indicates that he had already removed to the south side of Long Island.

On Oct 10, 1740 James Smith of Moriches bought land in St. George's Manor of Captain Isaac Halsey, and on Mar 10, 1740/41 for £8 he bought 500 acres on the south side of the Peconic River from Timothy Hudson of Southold. On July 22, 1765, Ezekiel Smith sold to David Howell and to Josiah Smith land which would seem to be identical with the above tracts bought by his father, who had probably died before that time.

The James Smyth who witnessed the will of Daniel Smith (9) was probably this James.

He was an overseer of Roads in 1765, and held other town offices later. He was captain of the Woodbury Clove company of militia, in Colonel Jesse Woodhull's regiment, in 1774, but was succeeded by his younger brother, Francis, at the beginning of the Revolution in 1775. They removed to Nova Scotia (Mrs. Vail).

Susannah (Floyd) Smith was buried in the Floyd section of the Presbyterian Churchyard, Setauket. Her father, Richard Floyd, b. 12 May 1665, d. 28 Feb 1737/8, was a son of Richard Floyd, a native of Wales, who went to Setauket some years after its first settlement. Margaret Nicoll, b. 30 May 1662, d. 1 Feb 1718/19, was a daughter of Matthias Nicoll, the first English secretary of the Colony of New York, in 1671 Mayor of New York, and in 1683 appointed one of the judges of the Supreme Court, in which office he continued until his death, 22 Dec 1687. Colonel Henry Smith, born at Tangier, 19 Jan 1679, was a son of Colonel William Smith, who had been a mayor in Tangier, an English possession from 1662 to 1684, and who, coming to America in 1686, became Chief Justice and President of the Council of the Province of New York. The first wife of Colonel Henry Smith was Anna, daughter of the Rev. Thomas Shepard, of Charlestown, Mass., and they were married 1 Jan 1704/5, by the celebrated theologian, the Rev. Cotton Mather.

Richard Smith, on 29 Aug 1688, deeded 100 acres of upland and 10 acres of creek thatch to his son, Adam Smith, for the benefit of the latter's son, Edmund Smith. The will of "Edmund Smith, Gent., Smithtown," dated 2 Jly 1734, proved 15 Jan 1735 (N.S.), mentions his wife Mary and her two children, Thomas and Anne, and his daughter, Margaret. The division of property among his sons is shown by the following abstract:

> I leave to my son Edmund my house barn and grist mill, and the house that Benjamin Ackerly now dwells in, and some small pieces of land and meadow adjoining the mill creek, one small lot of land and meadow adjoining the mill creek, one small lot of land formerly belonging to Timothy Biggs in Brookhaven. Likewise a certain tract bounded from a certain well called Jacob's well, so running from thence southward by the water side to Timothy Mills two acre lot, then east to my small lot then east to my small lot adjoining to Timothy Mills, then by the fence down to the road, and from the said Jacob's well up a certain Hollow till it comes to the head of it, thence to the northwest corner of the fence, then as the fence goes to the hollow where Richard Smith lives, and so extending as the fence goes till it comes to the lot adjoining Timothy Mills. Also 70 acres lying between the 50 acres lots and Timothy Mills' homestead and lot. Also a lot lying at Rascepeage, and a piece of salt meadow adjoining to my said son's land. And a piece of salt meadow and creek thatch adjoining to the Long Beach. I also leave him 7 negro slaves. I likewise order my son to have a tender regard for his grandmother, and to provide for her maintenance as long as she lives, and likewise to have a tender regard for his brother Floyd till he comes of age.

I leave to my son Floyd Smith a certain tract running from Jacob's well as the shore goes, to a white oak tree standing by Richard Smith's orchard, thence by Richard Smith's land up a certain hollow till it comes to the land of Edmund Smith, thence as the fence goes to the north west corner of Edmund Smith's 10 acre lot, and so to the said Jacob's well. Likewise my eastermost 50 acre lot No. 1, extending south to the country road. Also a piece of meadow lying by Richard Smith's orchard and a piece of meadow in the cove near Jacob's well.

I leave to my son Thomas Smith a tract of land bounded on the east end of Timothy Mills' two acre lot, and so along as the road goes to Timothy Mills' bound rock, and so extending along Smithtown road to Joseph Smith's fence and so by his fence down to the harbor, and northward by the water side to Timothy Mills' 2 acre lot. Smith, of Stony Brook, a descendant. It was published in 1769, so that most of the entries were made many years after the events recorded, and names of at least two children were omitted. 40. MARY[3] SMITH (Daniel,[2] Richard[1]), stated by Thompson and by Samuel Arden Smith to have married (1) Obadiah Smith. The latter authority states that she married a second time, and Thompson that she married (2) Zebulon Bunce and had issue by him. If this marriage took place and was the one reported by the Rev. Joshua Hartt as on 1 Jan 1775, then the children, if correctly given as hers, must have been by the first marriage. No further confirmation of any of these statements has ever been found. The will of Daniel Smith, dated 19 Nov 1719, names his daughter Mary, under twenty-one and unmarried.

Children of Mary Smith (as named by Thompson):

i. Obadiah.
ii. Lemuel.

42. PLATT[4] SMITH (Jonathan,[3] Jonathan,[2] Richard[1]), b. 1 Oct 1706, d. 24 Aug 1743, m. 20 Dec 1733, Mary Woolsey, born probably in 1715, died about 24 Oct 1767, buried 25 Oct 1767, in Strong's Neck burial ground, Setauket, daughter of the Rev. Benjamin and Abigail (Taylor) Woolsey, of Southold. Benjamin Woolsey, b. 19 Nov 1687, at Jamaica, L.I., son of George Woolsey, Jr., a graduate of Yale in 1709, became pastor of the First Church in Southold in 1720. He had married, 11 Aug 1710, Abigail, daughter of John Taylor, of Glen Cove, L.I., and his wife Mary, daughter of Daniel Whitehead. Abigail (Taylor) Woolsey inherited her father's estate, afterward called "Dosoris," and she and her husband lived there after her father's death in 1735.

Platt Smith's homestead was on the west side of the Nissequogue, a part of it being in recent years the residence of James W. Phyfe. Platt Smith held a commission as ensign in the company of which Edmund Smith was Captain. He was chosen town clerk in April, 1730, and was either clerk, assessor, or supervisor most of the time afterward until his death. The following entry is found on the town records:

> Whereas Platt Smith was chosen Supervisor in the year 1743 and is deceased, Wee the Inhabitants of Smithtown have at a town meeting accordingly, we have chose Captain Richard Smith Supervisor in his room.

Mrs. Mary (Woolsey) Smith, widow of Platt Smith, married (2) Dr. George Muirson, of Setauket, as second wife, and had a daughter, Mary Heathcote Muirson, who married William Wickham Mills.

43. RUTH[4] SMITH (Jonathan,[3] Jonathan,[2] Richard[1]), b. 31 Dec 1713, d. 9 Apr 1793, m. (lic. 28 Nov 1738) Henry Smith (Tangier), b. 13 Feb 1710/11, d. 3 May 1747, second son of Colonel Henry Smith and his wife Anna, daughter of the Rev. Thomas Shepard, of Charlestown, Mass., and grandson of Chief Justice William Smith, of St. George's Manor, Brookhaven, Long Island. Henry Smith was buried in the old burial ground on Little Neck, later called Strong's Neck, Setauket. The will of Henry Smith, Jr., merchant, of Brookhaven, dated 25 Mch 1747, proved 9 Apr 1748, mentions his wife, Ruth, his son, Charles Jeffrey, under age, and his daughters, Martha and Elizabeth. Circumstantial evidence indicates that Ruth Smith married (2), as second wife, Nathaniel Brewster, who died 21 Jne 1772, in his 57th year, son of Justice Nathaniel Brewster and his wife, Phebe Smith (28).* Nathaniel Brewster and Ruth Smith were second cousins, and the first husband and first wife were brother and sister.

* In the Patentee's burial ground at Nissequogue is the gravestone of Mrs. Ruth Brewster, who died 9 Apr 1793, aged 80 years, relict of Nathaniel Brewster. Among the known descendants of the Rev. Nathaniel Brewster, the only Nathaniel that this could be is the one here named, whose first wife was Gloriana Smith, sister of the above Henry Smith who died in 1747. Mrs. Gloriana Brewster died in 1750. The will of Henry Smith mentions no son other than Charles Jeffrey Smith. The will of Charles Jeffrey Smith names his brother James, and in another place his brother James Brewster. Published genealogical items referring to this family, including statements by Thompson, Pelletreau, Mather, and by Mrs. Sullivan, compiler of the genealogy of the descendants of the Rev. Nathaniel Brewster, do not give such a second marriage, but appear to assume that the name James Brewster was the given name of an own brother of Charles Jeffrey Smith, supposedly born after the date of the father's will. That Nathaniel Brewster left a widow Ruth is shown by the Brookhaven tax list for 1775, and she is also named in the 1776 Census, and indicated as then living at the homestead in South Brookhaven. Her gravestone is with a group of Floyd stones, including those of Charles Floyd and General John Floyd and members of their families. The cumulative evidence appears so strong as to render the conclusion irresistible that Nathaniel Brewster's widow had also been the widow of Henry Smith. As no trace of James Brewster has been found, later than mention in the will as above, it would appear probable that he died when young. Ruth Brewster, named by Herbert F. Smith and by Mrs. Sullivan in their manuscripts as a daughter of Nathaniel Brewster, must have been a daughter by the second marriage. It seems altogether likely that Mrs. Ruth Brewster, at some time after 1776, returned to Nissequogue and made her home with her Floyd nephew, thus returning to the home of her childhood. Otherwise it would seem likely that she would have been buried beside the grave of her husband, Nathaniel Brewster, in the South Haven churchyard.

Nathaniel Brewster was killed by a negro servant, under circumstances similar to those attending the death of his stepson, the Rev. Charles Jeffrey Smith, about two years previously.

Richard Smith inherited the homestead of his father. He was known as "Shell Dick." This came from the fact that his lands contained large "shell heaps," or deposits of shells made by the Indians in prehistoric days, and this material being sold as a fertilizer constituted a considerable source of income. Richard Smith died and was buried at Nissequogue. His widow went to New Orleans soon after his death, to live with her brother, and died not long afterward of yellow fever. Richard and Julia (Bryant) Smith left no children.

159. Mary, b. 9 Mch 1773, d. 15 Oct 1833, married (1) Robert DeGrove; married (2) Abram Smith (387), son of Major Jeffrey and Prudence (Smith) Smith.

* The name of Isaac Smith's wife has not been verified. Thompson gives the name as Field. Samuel Arden Smith had Thiel in his manuscript. The printed volume of New York Marriages gives a license issued 19 Dec 1770 to Isaac Smith and Margaret Theal. Pelletreau had seen Samuel A. Smith's MSS. and apparently accepted the name there given, but having also seen the record of the license, probably assumed that it was for the same couple and used the spelling of that record.

53. JOSIAH[4] SMITH (Nathaniel,[3] Richard,[2] Richard[1]), b. 28 Nov 1723, d. 15 May 1786, m. (1) 15 Dec 1742, Susannah Gelston, b. Mch 1721/22 (probably),* d. 22 Dec 1754, daughter of Judge Hugh and Mary (Maltby) Gelston, of Southampton, L.I. He married (2) 5 Nov 1758, Mary Howell, daughter of David Howell, who died 15 Nov 1782, in her forty-ninth year.

Hugh Gelston was born in Ireland, in 1697, and died 8 Dec 1775. He came to this country in 1715 and settled in Southampton. He was county judge from 1752 to 1754. His wife was a daughter of John and Susannah (Clark) Maltby, of Southampton, and granddaughter of John and Mary (Bryan) Maltby, of New Haven.

Josiah Smith was commissioned as colonel 30 Feb 1776 and was in command of the regiment of militia recruited in Suffolk and Queens counties, afterward usually designated as "Colonel Smith's Regiment." In August, 1776, following orders issued by Congress, he marched his regiment to the western end of Long Island to join the troops gathered there to protect the Island and New York City in the expected offensive action by the British. The regiment reached Increase Carpenter's place, near Jamaica, August 13th, and Brooklyn Ferry the next day. After the British came from Staten Island, August 22d, Colonel Smith's regiment was engaged in sentry and guard duty, a part of the time in advanced positions, during the engagement since known as the Battle of Long Island. When the decision was reached to retreat, the troops crossed to New York in the early morning of August 30th, and marched to Kingsbridge and Westchester. Colonel Smith's regiment embarked at Mamaroneck September 1st and crossed Long Island Sound, landing in Smithtown. They marched to Bridgehampton the next day and disbanded, the colonel giving orders for each man to shift for himself in getting his family and effects away from Long Island, if he should not wish to risk the danger of remaining. Colonel Smith was subsequently taken by the British from his house and held a prisoner for some time.

* In the Strong Genealogy (1871) and in the N.Y. Gen. & Biog. Rec. vol. ii, p. 132, probably the first printed genealogical records giving these dates, the date of birth is given as 28 Mch 1721, which date has probably been copied by other genealogists but does not correspond with the tombstone inscription, which states that she died in her 33rd year. It seems possible that an error may have been made by misreading a "3" for an "8" in the original record or at some point in the preparation of the matter for the printer, and that the date should be 23 Mch 1721/2, or an original "1" may have been read as "2", making the proper date 18 Mch 1721/2. If either conjecture should be correct, it would remove the discrepancy.

Josiah Smith inherited all the Moriches lands belonging to his father. The house where he was living at the time of his father's death had been built for him and bore the date "1740" carved in the wood on the outside. He removed from there to the house where his father had lived, in East Moriches, and gave to his son Hugh the 1740 house. Some years ago the shingles covering the side of the house had to be renewed and the one bearing the date 1740 was lost. Both houses still stand and have remained in the occupancy of descendants. The 1740 house, visited when occupied by Conklin Havens, contained many heirlooms and old papers of historic interest and value. It has been sold within a few years, but the old East Moriches house is still occupied by descendants.

The will of Josiah Smith, dated 17 Jan 1786, proved 17 May 1786, left to his eldest son, Hugh, "all my lands Eastward of David Howel's farm and to extend eastward as far as Southampton line. * * * Also my half of the Island lying at the bottom of the neck which belonged to Mathew Smith decest also my loted meadow on the beach eastward of Bayley's stage. * * * also my silver punch bowl which did belong to my father Nathaniel Smith." To the second son, Oliver, was left "all the neck of land or farm I now live on called Meritches neck and extending northward to the manor line and also my Island in the bay commonly called Reaves Island." The daughters were mentioned as Jane Fanning, Hannah Pelletrau, and Juliance Crummeline. The executors appointed were "my son Olliver when he shall arrive at the age of twenty-one years, my son in law Elias Pelletrau and my friend William Phillips."

* The family tree inserted in the Oakes Bible, containing dates for the births of Joseph Smith's children was written by Edward Oakes. It is written in a very fine hand, but almost every figure is distinct and unquestionable. While, for the most part, the dates correspond with those derived from other sources, there are several discrepancies which call for attention. Of the birth dates for Joseph, 10 Nov 1754, and for William, 19 Jan 1755, as given in the Oakes record, one is evidently an error. The church record gives the baptism of Joseph as on 15 Jne 1755. If William had been born 19 Jan 1755 and Joseph at some time previous to the date of the Oakes record, and if Joseph was baptised 15 Jne 1755, William would surely have been baptized at the same time. Although the gravestone inscription for William, as read, and the entry in the Bible of William Franklin Smith, published 1844, also indicate his birth as in 1755, it is supposed to be an error, and the year 1758 is accepted as correct. It seems probable that the same original record, not now available, may have been used as the source of authority for both the family record and the gravestone inscription, and an original "8" read as "5", an error that might easily have occurred. In some records which have been found, belonging to that period, the 8 and 5 have been made so nearly alike, that, even when not blurred by time and wear, it is almost impossible, and sometimes quite so, to determine which was intended, without the weight of other evidence.

The Oakes record gives the birth year for Ruhamah as 1758, while the gravestone inscription indicates the proper year as 1756, which is accepted as correct. With the above two changes in the years for William and Ruhamah, the list of birth dates as given in the Oakes record is here adopted.

The inscription on the gravestone of Daniel Smith gives the date of his death as 3 Jan 1803, at the age of 43 years, i.e. born 1759, or possibly 1760. Either birth date of Daniel, 17 Sep 1759 or 17 Sep 1760, would be impossible if Selah was born 10 May 1760, which is the date in the Oakes record and is also in accord with the gravestone inscription. Accordingly the age for Daniel as given on the gravestone is considered an error, and the dates of the Oakes record are accepted for both Selah and Daniel.

76. STEPHEN[4] SMITH (Joseph,[3] Job,[2] Richard[1]), who died in 1783 or early 1784, married Sarah Smith (120), b. 11 Dec 1722, daughter of Obadiah and Susannah (Stephens) Smith.* The will of Stephen Smith was dated 7 Jly 1783, proved 27 Feb 1784. The following abstract gives the principal provisions of the will:

> I leave to my loving grand son Obadiah Smith my homestead bounded as follows, Beginning by the road and running westerly by the partition fence on the south of my homestead, till it comes to Micah Smith's land, then running by Micah Smith's land till it comes to ye orchard fence, thence by ye fence as it stands till it comes

* Thompson, in his printed History, states that Stephen Smith, son of Joseph, married Sarah, daughter of Samuel Smith. This is evidently an error. The error appears simply to have been a slip, at some point in the story, by which the term granddaughter became daughter. In the Thompson MSS. in the Pennypacker Collection at the East Hampton Library, this error is corrected by the statement that Stephen Smith, son of Joseph, married a sister of Philetus Smith.

Certain descendants of Aaron Smith 2d and his wife, Sarah Smith, daughter of Stephen, believing from tradition that they are descendants of Obadiah Smith, son of the first Samuel, have supposed that they derive from Obadiah through his son Stephens, who has been erroneously designated as Stephen. Available evidence justifies the tradition of descent from Obadiah, but shows that it is through his daughter, Sarah, and not through the son, Stephens. The error is incorporated in Pelletreau's Records of Smithtown. In that work, p. 53, is given the will of Stephen Smith. The maker of the will is wrongly called, in the heading, "Son of Obadiah," whereas he was the son of Joseph. The will of Obadiah Smith immediately follows that of Stephen, in the records. A part of this will may be found on p. 27 of this work, there eliminating certain errors found in Pelletreau's copy. A comparison of the two wills shows unmistakably that the Stephen of the above will could not have been Obadiah's son. Stephen's will mentions grandsons Obadiah, Isaac, and James, known by evidence from other sources as sons of Stephen's son Peter, while there is no evidence that Stephens Smith (Obadiah's son) had grandsons of those names. A considerable part of each will is devoted to a detailed description of lands bequeathed to heirs. Comparison of these descriptions shows that the one estate was entirely distinct from the other.

to a bunch of chestnut saplings by the Cow yard fence, then round the north and west sides of the yard taking in ye yard and barn, and thence along the road southward to the first bounds. Taking in my dwelling house in which I now live. Likewise all my land lying between the two roads leading to Mills pond, bounded east by Joseph Smith's and west by William Mills, south in part by the Branch road. Also 40 acres south of Josiah Smith's, in the same long lot, south of the road from the Branch to Mills pond, and all my land lying southward in the same long lot, except 20 acres on ye south end which I shall hereafter dispose of, leaving one rod wide from the Country road to Mills road, on the west side of the same for a road for my heirs to pass to and from. * * *

I leave to my two grand sons Isaac Smith and James Smith, a tract of land with the house where their father lived, bounded as follows, Beginning at a bunch of Chestnut saplings by the Cow yard, then running west across the pitle, and then by the south side of the orchard to Micah Smith's land, then north by his land to the road, then along the road to the west line of ye Cow yard, and so by ye yard to ye first bounds. Also an orchard joining the road, that leads from Charles Smiths to Mills pond, adjoining Charles Smiths land, being 3 acres. Also 20 acres on the south end of my land joining the Country road, * * * my grand daughter Eunice Conkling.

I appoint my son in law Aaron Smith, and Joshua Hart, executors.

1790, son of Daniel and Mary (Thompson) Smith. Daniel Smith was a grandson of Arthur Smith, an early resident of Setauket. Arthur Smith was one of the earliest settlers of Southold. In 1659, probably for having manifested a leaning toward Quakerism, he was sent from Southold to New Haven for trial and was convicted and sentenced. At about that time he removed from Southold to Setauket, very possibly in consequence of his treatment in Southold and New Haven.

Also, in a different hand,—"Zurviah wife of Timothy Smith" born June 6, 1763, died May 13, 1809. Timothy Smith and his children were born at Ronkonkoma, but the family removed to Setauket about 1779. 99. MATTHEW[4] SMITH (James,[3] Job,[2] Richard[1]), b. 3 Sep 1721, d. 22 Sep 1785, married (1) ———— ————, by whom he had one son, James. He married (2) Ann Howell, b. 10 Jly 1730, d. 10 Feb 1800, daughter of Ezekiel Howell. A letter written by Captain Josiah Smith, of Moriches, to John C. Smith, of Jamaica, L.I., in February 1843, reads as follows:

> Mr. Matthew Smith, your Great Grandfather lived and died in Moriches; his first wife I never knew. She died before I was born. your Grandfather James Smith I believe was her only child, unless one of Mathews elder Daughters, by name Betsey, might have been another.
> Matthews 2nd wife was a Howell I believe from Southampton Their children were Hannah, who married a Mr Dunham of New Brunswick, New Jersey. Their issue two Daughters, one of which married a Mr Howell (a merchant, in Brunswick) since Dead. The ogher married, a Barkeloo—somewhere near Brunswick 2nd Jerusha, who married Parshall Downs of New Burgh, N. York who Died; & I know not whether she is living or not as about 4 years since I saw her last & have not heard from her since 3rd Named Henry, who Died at sea a single Man
> 4th named Theophilus, who Married Miss Gloriana Brewster of Moriches—he died at East Hampton about four years since; he left two sons vizt Matthew Henry Smith, who went to Red River, on the Mississippi, & if living, is somewhere there, a mechanic. One son named Conklin H. Smith, who was lost at sea One Daughter named Marion Osborn, who is a widow in Easthampton, with whom the mother lives, Theophilus not leaving much real Estate. The above is all that I can say as to the enquiry you made & as to Betsey above mentioned she married Richd. Peters—& lived in Southhold they leaving one son & I think he is dead

The family Bible of Matthew Smith, seen in the possession of Samuel O. Hedges, of Bridgehampton, contains dates of births, and deaths, but no marriage records. In the Salmon Records of Southold is found an entry to the effect that Matthew Smith was drowned, probably at Shelter Island, 23 Sep 1785. The person who made the entry was probably misinformed as to the exact day, the Bible entry being unquestioned. This is the only information so far found indicating this manner of death.

Austin and Francis Smith are found among town officials between 1765 and 1776. At the beginning of the Revolution Austin Smith signed the Association Articles, but appears to have changed his views, and later he became a loyalist. At the battle of Fort Montgomery Captain Francis Smith was severely wounded, but was saved from capture and taken twelve miles to his home by two non-commissioned officers, Sergeant Weygant and Corporal Miller. Later these two participated in a double wedding with the two daughters of Captain Smith. A gravestone in an old burial ground in Smith's Clove bore the following inscription:

122. STEPHENS[4] SMITH (Obadiah,[3] Samuel,[2] Richard[1]), b. 15 Sep 1726, married Sarah Owen, who possibly died 14 Jly ————, at age of fifty years, daughter of Captain George Owen. She was buried in a small burial plot in what has been called the Elias Smith farm, not far from Jones's Point, west of the Nissequogue River, where a fragment of her gravestone was recently found. The name was distinct, but a part of the figures gone and the balance much weatherworn and very uncertain.* The will of Obadiah Smith, dated 17 Nov 1761, contains the following provisions relating to his son Stephens:

> I give to my son Stephens Smith the house and lot of land with the swamp land as it was laid out to me on the east side of Nesequague River, and the utensils of the clothier's trade. Also my share of fresh and salt meadow with the lot of land adjoining on the west side of the river as it was laid out to me, and likewise the east end of the long lot called Indian Head, which I give to him and his heirs upon

* A train of errors appears to have developed in the genealogical notes published in the printed volume of Records of Smithtown, due to the confusion of records of Stephen Smith, son of Joseph, with those referring to Stephens, son of Obadiah. The foundation error was probably the wrong identification of the maker of the will given on page 53 of the Records, as Stephen son of Obadiah Smith, whereas it was the will of Stephen, son of Joseph. This misapprehension also involves the parentage of Sarah Smith, who married Aaron Smith (96). Aside from other considerations, the fact that Sarah, wife of Aaron Smith, was born in 1747, makes it seem improbable that she was the daughter of Stephens, son of Obadiah Smith, who was born in 1726.

> this condition and not otherwise, namely that he does outlive or survive his now wife Sarah the daughter of Captain George Owen deceased, and upon this same condition I likewise give him two acres of meadow or thatch on the east end of Jones's point thatch bed, but and if it should so happen that he does not survive his said wife Sarah, then in that case, I give and bequeath all the premises aforesaid (that I have ordered him) unto my two sons Obadiah and Philetus and to their heirs forever to be equally divided between them or their heirs, share and share alike. I also give to my said son Stephens, during his natural life only, the use of my negro boy Micah, after the decease of my Wife and then I give the said negro to my son Obadiah forever. * * * But note it was omitted in its proper place to will and order my two sons Obadiah and Philetus to pay to my grandson Nathanial son of my son Stephens, the sum of two hundred pounds, which I give him out of the sale of his father's share if he should not survive his wife, and now order my said two sons to pay the same, if my said grandson arrives at the age of twenty-one years.

It would seem probable that Stephens Smith may not have been in vigorous health at the time the will was written, and may not have been expected to live long. The date of his death has not been learned, but he probably lived for some years after the date of the will.

Children of Stephens and Sarah (Owen) Smith (2 sons):

327. Nathaniel,[5] named in the will of his grandfather, Obadiah Smith, in 1761, probably died when young.

His residence was at Willow Pond, on grounds forming a part of the extensive lands given him by his father. The house, enlarged and altered, is now the home of the Wyandanch Club. The door still shows the mark of the sword in the hand of a British officer, made by a blow intended for the owner of the house, inflicted in one of a series of unsuccessful attempts to force him to sign the oath of allegiance to the King. Caleb Smith and Philetus Smith signed, for Smithtown, the congratulations to Governor Clinton, dated 12 Apr 1783.

FIFTH GENERATION

154. ELIZABETH[5] SMITH (Platt,[4] Jonathan,[3] Jonathan,[2] Richard[1]), d. 31 Aug 1816, in Stamford, Conn., aged 79 years, m. 20 Sep 1767, her cousin, Charles Jeffrey Smith, born at St. George's Manor, Brookhaven, L.I., d. 10 Aug 1770, in his 31st year, son of Henry Smith (Tangier) and his wife, Ruth Smith (43), daughter of Jonathan and Elizabeth (Platt) Smith. Charles Jeffrey Smith was a minister and spent much of his life in missionary work among the Indians and among the negroes of the South. It was long supposed that his death was caused by accidental shooting while out hunting, but many years afterward a negro confessed that he had killed him. His will, dated 5 Dec 1769, proved 23 Aug 1770, mentions his wife Elizabeth and sisters Elizabeth and Martha, and gave directions for his son, Elihu Platt Smith, to be educated at Nassau Hall. Elizabeth, wife of Charles Jeffrey Smith, with her sister Abigail, inherited the homestead of their father, on the west side of the Nissequogue. The property seems to have been sold later to Aaron Smith, and the part next the river was afterward the residence of James W. Phyfe. The portraits of Elizabeth Smith and of her son, Elihu Platt Smith, were painted by Ralph Earl in 1794 and were inherited by Professor Theodore S. Woolsey.

Child of Charles Jeffrey and Elizabeth (Smith) Smith (a son):

i. Elihu Platt, d. 14 Aug 1795, of yellow fever, in New York, where he had been engaged in business. He was a graduate of Yale, in the class of 1785. His death occurred shortly before the date of an expected marriage with a Miss Havens.

157. Abigail[5] Smith (Platt,[4] Jonathan,[3] Jonathan,[2] Richard[1]), d. 16 Dec 1777, aged 33 years, m. 11 Oct 1763, at Stamford, Conn., Adam Babcock, b. 27 Sep 1740, at Westerly, Rhode Island, died 1817, in Boston, son of Dr. Joshua and Hannah (Stanton) Babcock, of Westerly. Joshua Babcock, Yale 1724, studied medicine in Boston and in London and settled in Westerly. Later he was a representative in the Colonial Legislature and was Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Rhode Island and one of the original incorporators of Brown University. Adam Babcock was a merchant and ship owner in New Haven, where he owned and outfitted one or more privateers in the Revolution. Adam and Abigail Babcock, on 15 Nov 1773, conveyed to Joshua Babcock, of Westerly, R.I., all of their half of the estate of Platt Smith, and the next day Joshua Babcock reconveyed it to Adam Babcock. Adam Babcock m. (2) 23 Mch 1779, Martha, daughter of Daniel Hubbard, of Boston, and proably later removed to Boston, but appears to have been living in New Haven in 1784.

Children of Adam and Abigail (Smith) Babcock (3 sons):

i. William Smith, b. 15 Nov 1764, married Elizabeth Merrill. He was a Baptist minister.
ii. Joshua, born 1770, died 1790, on a voyage to Calcutta with his father.

159. Mary Smith[5] (Isaac,[4] Richard,[3] Richard,[2] Richard[1]), b. 9 Mch 1773, d. 15 Oct 1833, m. (1) 28 Feb 1795, at Smithtown, by the Rev. Joshua Hartt, to Robert D. DeGrove, son of Adolph and Rhoda (Coles) DeGrove. She was married (2) 9 Apr 1814, at the Reformed Dutch Church in New York City, as second wife, to Abram Smith (387), b. 16 May 1770, d. 5 Sep 1847, son of Major Jeffrey and Prudence (Smith) Smith. There was no child by this marriage. Mary Smith, early orphaned, grew up in the family of her aunt, Anna Smith (44). For some years, probably after the death of her first husband, she and her cousin, Nancy Smith (269), and doubtless Nancy's mother also, were closely associated in the management of a boarding house on Pearl Street in an exclusive residence section of New York City. At some time in that period she procured an elaborate set of table china of many pieces made to her order in China, the pattern probably being arranged by some one of her sea going patrons. It was more than a year after the order had been given before the dishes came. The set had an "orange skin" surface finish, and each piece conspicuously bore the initials "P.D." This was for "Polly DeGrove," the name by which she was at that time popularly known. Numerous pieces of this set are still in existence and highly prized by their present owners. A considerable collection is in possession of Mrs. William H. Smith of Stony Brook and her daughter, Mrs. Harriet Smith Davis, Smithtown Branch.

The three women continued living together after the marriage to Abram Smith, so that Nancy Smith and her mother, Anna Smith, then nearly one hundred years old, formed a part of Abram Smith's household, at the homestead which has since become the home of the Church institution, the Society of St. Johnland at Kings Park.

Child of Robert C. and Mary (Smith) DeGrove (a son):

161. HUGH[5] SMITH (Josiah,[4] Nathaniel,[3] Richard[2] Richard[1]), b. 9 Nov 1745, d. 9 Oct 1792, m. 13 Nov 1769, Anna Floyd, b. 1 Aug 1748 [o.s.], d. 11 Nov 1792,* daughter of Nicoll Floyd and his wife, Tabitha Smith

*This is the date found on the tombstone. The family Bible of Colonel Josiah Smith, seen at East Moriches, has the date of birth as 12 Aug 1747, and of death as 25 Nov 1792, at the age of 45 years, 3 months, and 13 days, which would be correct for those dates. The tombstone inscription gives her death as in her 45th year, which corresponds with the date of birth in the old Floyd record, 1 Aug 1748. All entries in the Bible were made not earlier than 1772, the date of publication, and the older dates were probably transposed from old style to new, 1 Aug old style corresponding to 12 Aug new style. The entries are in a number of different hands, and it is probable that some of the dates, as entered, were fixed by reliance on memory, with a considerable chance for error. Taking all the facts into account, there would seem to be a greater chance for error in the Bible entry than in the tombstone inscription.

(41). Hugh Smith inherited the eastern part of his father's Moriches lands and occupied the house at Watchogue, built in 1740 for his father by his grandfather, Nathaniel Smith. Among the heirlooms which were preserved and treasured and were seen in that house thirty years ago, were a portrait of Anna Floyd and a piece of the material of her pink silk wedding gown. There were also numerous old deeds and other documents.

This house has now passed out of the hands of Smith descendants. The heirlooms are no longer there, but much of the beautiful old interior finish and fittings of the house has been preserved.

It consists of very large sheets, containing genealogical tables elaborately prepared and beautifully written, largely taken from the family lists given by Thompson in his History, but including additional data with regard to that portion of the family history of which he had personal knowledge or first hand information. Mr. Robbins thought that he had discovered the burial place of the first Richard Smith and his wife in the Presbyterian Church-

227. PETER[5] SMITH (Stephen,[4] Joseph,[3] Job,[2] Richard[1]), born probably about 1740, married a daughter of Nathaniel Smith, supposed to have been Nathaniel Smith (103), son of James.* The will of Stephen Smith,

*In the Thompson manuscript in the Pennypacker Collection at the East Hampton Library the statement is made that Peter Smith, son of Stephen, married a daughter of Nathaniel Smith. The only known Nathaniel to whom this statement could apply was the son of James, son of the first Job. Nathaniel had a sister Eunice, and it would be perfectly natural for this somewhat unusual name to be given to a daughter, from whom, as wife of Peter Smith, it might be bestowed on a daughter or a granddaughter of the latter, and thus we may logically account for the granddaughter (possibly a great-granddaughter) Eunice Conkling, of Stephen Smith's will. Samuel Arden stated that Peter Smith had daughters Eunice and Sarah, saying that the daughter Sarah married Aaron Smith. His error in this dated 7 Jly 1783, names his grandsons, Obadiah, Isaac, and James, but did not name their father, who is supposed to have been previously deceased.

230. GERSHOM[5] SMITH (Gershom,[4] Joseph,[3] Job,[2] Richard[1]), d. 16 Mch 1816, aged 53 years, married Elizabeth Smith (722), daughter of William and Sarah (Willis) Smith. The will of Gershom Smith, dated 15 Mch 1816, proved 27 May 1816, mentions his wife, not named, his two sons, Obadiah and Tredwell, his two younger sons, Gershom and William, both under sixteen, and his daughter Hannah. He referred to the sloop Suffolk, of which he was half owner, and to a farm bought a short time before, which had belonged to William Blydenburgh.

statement may be in attributing to Peter a daughter Sarah, and then calling her Aaron's wife, or he may simply have made an error in giving the marriage to the wrong Sarah, as it would seem very possible that Peter may have had a daughter Sarah as well as a sister of that name, the latter the one to marry Aaron Smith. Samuel Arden Smith also, having seen Stephen Smith's will, may have assumed that Eunice Conkling, mentioned in the will, was a daughter of Peter, instead of a granddaughter.

240. SAMUEL W.[5] SMITH (Gilbert,[4] Joseph,[3] Job,[2] Richard[1]), d. 23 Mch 1828, aged 63 years, married Sarah Smith (721), daughter of William and Catharine (Smith) Smith. The will of Samuel W. Smith, dated 30 Nov 1823, proved 29 Apr 1828, mentions his wife, Sally, and her brother, William Smith; sons, Thomas W., of Smithtown, William, then of age, daughter, Patience M. McColly, daughter, Sally Ann Smith, sons Samuel, Richard, Charles B., and Matthew F. A quarter acre of his farm was to be kept for a family burial ground. The farm was at Indian Head, Smithtown, and the ground taken was near the road, somewhat north of the house. The gravestone of the testator was found there recently, although it had fallen and was covered. It is probable that no other stone was ever erected on that ground, although another burial was made there many years later, a great grandchild of Samuel W. Smith. Soon after 1828 the farm was sold and became the property of Samuel Paul Smith.

Phebe McCoon was born and married at Oyster Bay, where she lived with her grandfather Albertson. She was probably on a visit to her father, in Smithtown, when seen by President Dwight, of Yale College, whose tribute to her beauty and charm is quoted by Thompson in his history. *Thompson calls Phebe McCoon the daughter of Derick McCoon; also the records of St. George's Church, Hempstead, give the marriage, 21 Feb 1784, of Dreck McCoon and Anne Albertson. The gravestone inscription, at Oyster Bay, has the record,—Anna Albertson, wife of Richard McCoon, 6 May 1766-20 May 1841. It would seem probable that the brother, Derick McCoon, may have been present at the wedding, and the officiating clergyman, not previously acquainted with them, may have confused the names.

*In the Bible of George Curtis the record of his children's births was apparently made at one writing, probably by George Curtis himself, at some time after the latest birth. It seems to incorporate several errors and omits the birth of the first Renelche, whose gravestone inscription in St. James Churchyard records that she died 20 April 1827, aged 17 months, making her birth date November, 1825, which may be accepted as correct. In the Bible the birth date for the son George is given as 15 Sep 1825, and that for Ruth as 16 Nov 1827. The gravestone of Ruth (Curtis) Smith and the record from the Bible of her husband, Eleazer Hawkins Smith, give her death as occurring 21 Nov 1882, at the age of 57 years, i.e. born 1825. This also seems not subject to question. Both the above Bible records give her birth day as November 16, which is presumably correct, but with the year not the same in the two, and neither one corresponding with the year as deduced from the gravestone inscription. These discrepancies may be ironed out by accepting the supposition that George Curtis, in making the record, many years late, transposed the years of birth of the children Ruth and George, and omitted a first Renelche, twin to Ruth. The question is complicated by the fact that both the Bible and gravestone of George W. Curtis record his birth as in 1825. But this may be reasonably explained by supposing that he, like many another person, had lost track of the year of his birth, and accepted the date found when looking up the record in his father's Bible, where the years of the two births had been accidentally transposed.

*The family records for George Washington Smith, his two wives, and the children, are found on two sheets of paper which have long been kept in the large family Bible, but no entry has been made in the Bible itself. Nearly all items on these sheets are written in a uniform manner, apparently in the hand of George W. Smith and at one sitting. The publication date of the Bible is 1874. It is to be supposed that the data were collected at about that time with the intention of making the Bible entries, many years after the births of the children and the earlier deaths. Most of the dates given accord with information derived from other sources, but in three instances there is a discrepancy. Nelson L. Smith and Caroline Matilda Smith, who died in infancy, were buried at the Head of the Harbor. The data for entry in the Bible were probably taken from the stones, possibly even then showing the effect of time, and errors made in copying the figures of the inscriptions and in computing date of birth. The George N. Smith stone is in Oak Hill Cemetery. Under the conditions found, it appears best to accept dates derived from the stones, rather than the entries on the Bible sheets.

*The family Bible of William Arthur gives the birth of his daughter Esther as on a date read as Thursday, July 17, 1780, but July 17th for that year fell on Monday. It would seem possible that the figure now read as "1" may have been written as "2" and that the age inscribed on the stone may have been computed after a similar error in reading the Bible entry at that time.

*This date of birth, taken from the small Bible of Lucius Smith, in possession of Mrs. Scott, of Smithtown, seems unquestionable, although the "5", as written, might easily be mistaken for an "8". The gravestone, in the Lucius Smith burial ground, Indian Head, gives the age as 28-8-25, probably resulting from an error in computation.

1294. JOHN CAUCHOIS[7] SMITH (James,[6] James,[5] Matthew,[4] James,[3] Job,[2] Richard[1]), b. 24 Sep 1798, d. 23 Jly 1859, in Jamaica, L.I., m. 24 Sep 1826, in New York, by the Rev. Dr. Feltus, to Lucy Ann Hoyt, b. 16 Oct 1805, in Danbury, Conn., d. 16 Oct 1872, in Cleveland, Ohio, daughter of Lewis and Abigail (Mygatt) Hoyt, of Canfield, Ohio, own cousin of Amanda Hoyt, wife of James Sell Smith, and a descendant of Walter

Hoyt and of Joseph Mygatt, both of whom were among the earliest settlers on the Connecticut River. John C. Smith was born at the residence of his father, at Cherry Street and Catherine Slip, New York. His father had come to count among his valued friends a French tobacco dealer of New York, John Cauchois, and named for him his third son. John C. Smith attended the Adelphi School and later clerked for his father and afterward for his brother in their mercantile business in New York. After his marriage he lived in Jamaica, where he had a store on the northwest corner of Fulton St. and Grand Ave. (now Jamaica Ave. and 168th St.), and was postmaster for a number of years. He was a strong temperance advocate in the early days of the temperance movement and gave up his business largely because it seemed impossible to do a general merchandising business without selling liquor.

He was county clerk from 1849 to 1851. He was chosen a vestryman of Grace Church, Jamaica, in 1832, and served continuously afterward, and at the time of his death had been senior warden for many years. He and his wife and four children were buried in the churchyard of Grace Church, but the burial plot, located close to the rear of the older part of the church building, has been covered by the extension built some years ago.

Mrs. Lucy Ann (Hoyt) Smith, after the death of her husband, removed from Jamaica to Ohio with her three daughters, living in Warren for a year and then going to Cleveland, where she made her home for the remainder of her life. The children were all born in Jamaica.

William C. Clark, to Laura Grant Furman, b. 4 Nov 1831 near the High Hills of Santee, S.C., d. 19 Oct 1927, daughter of Wood and Laura Matilda (Lyon) Furman, granddaughter of the Rev. Richard Furman of Charleston, S.C., and a descendant of John Firmin, who was in Watertown, Mass., in 1630, when his "wigwam" was burned. Laura Matilda Lyon was a daughter of James Lyon and granddaughter of Matthew Lyon of Vermont, later of Kentucky. She was also a descendant of Matthew Grant, of Jeremy Adams, of William Horsford, and of Richard Risley, all of whom were among the earliest settlers on the Connecticut River.

Edward Augustus Smith, brought up in Jamaica, had his schooling in Union Hall Academy, under Henry Onderdonk. At the age of 17, against the solicitations of his father to continue his schooling, he began his business life as clerk in the dry-goods store of Ahles & Sattler, at 281 Broadway, New York. After two years of experience there he went to Warren, where he was employed in the store of his uncles, Edward and Lewis Hoyt. After a few years he became a partner, taking charge especially of the drug end of the general mercantile business conducted by the firm. Changes occurred, and business was conducted under successive titles,—Hoyt Brothers & Company, E. A. Smith & Company, Smith, Stratton & Company, and Smith & Stratton. The last named firm had a drug and paint business and continued only four months when the store was burned in the fire which reduced to ashes a large part of the business section of the village, 30 Apr 1860. Later he resumed the drug business without a partner and continued in business until a few years before his death.

He was a member of Christ Church, organized shortly before he settled in Warren, and was a vestryman and warden for many years. He was an assiduous reader of history and in his later years not infrequently contributed articles to the newspapers, sometimes of considerable length, usually on historical topics.

Laura Grant Furman, losing both parents when a child, lived with her grandmother and her aunt until she became, at the age of fifteen, a member of the family of her mother's cousin, Mrs. Frederick Kinsman, of Warren, following a visit there with her grandmother.

of St. James, who was born on shipboard, off the Crozet Islands, when her parents were bound for Australia. Benjamin Myron Smith, after having been in the electrical business in Spokane, Wash., was later with his family in San Francisco. Intending to return to Long Island but wishing to make a side trip to Spokane first, he planned to have his wife and son go directly to Chicago, where he expected to join them a day or two later. His wife and son never saw him or heard from him afterward. It is supposed that he met with foul play, as he had a considerable sum of money on his person. In the search for him, detectives found his grip in a hotel but no further trace of him. His wife afterward made her home at St. James and later in Huntington, L.I.

Note: The Nicolls Patent to Richard Smith was dated March 3, 1665. This was the date under the Julian or Old Style calender, in which the year began on March 25th, then in use in England and her possessions, though the Gregorian or reformed or New Style calender had been adopted in most European countries in 1582 or soon thereafter. In September 1752 the New Style calender went into use in England and her dependencies. Before 1753, in these countries, documents drawn or written between January 1st and March 25th were generally dated so as to indicate whether the date was Old Style or New Style. Thus, the will of Richard and Sarah Smith was dated March ye 5th 1691-92, meaning 1691 Old Style, 1692 New Style. The year might also have been written 169½, or 1691 O.S. There is no such indication on the Nicolls Patent but the year was 1665 Old Style, 1666 New Style.
